Ice Storm Costly To City

The ice storm that swept through Sikeston in January, cost the city at least $16,268, according to Bill Whitlock, assistant city manager.

Whitlock released figures today on the expenditure for limb and debris removal by the city street department.

The 1252 truck loads of limbs removed included 656 loads of chips, Whitlock said. The clean up was accomplished by the use of two front-end loaders, one brush clipper, five trucks, and 12 men, he added.

Fields was injured about 11:55 p.m. on Highway 105 on the south edge of Charleston, when his car skidded off the road, slammed into a guard rail, bounced back across the road and hit a bridge bannister.

Carroll Lee Greer, 37, of Poplar Bluff, was killed outright when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car and struck a bridge abutment head on. The accident occurred at 12:45 a.m. today, on Highway 60, five miles east of Poplar Bluff.

No one has yet filed as a candidate for election to the County School Board, according to G. K. Patterson, board president.

Terms expire for two board members, Boyd Duff of route two, Sikeston, who holds the first district seat and Clyde Stubbs of Chaffee, who holds the second district seat.

Duff indicated today that he will file for re-election. Stubbs has been unavailable for comment.

The election is set for the first Tuesday in April. No cut off date has been set for those who want to file.

Beating Suspect Released

A suspect being held in the Tuesday night beating of Mrs. Beulah Wyse of 231 Luther was released by police after he passed a lie detector test in Poplar Bluff, yesterday.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce said more suspects will be picked up soon; probably today. Bruce added that fingerprints taken from the window at the Wyse house are being sent to Jefferson City for identification.

Mrs. Wyse continues in critical condition in the intensive care ward of Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. She was beaten severely on the head with a hammer by an assailant in her home Tuesday night.

Antiwar Conspiracy Trial

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A 53-year-old librarian was jailed for contempt of court today when she refused to testify at the federal conspiracy trial of antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six others accused of plotting to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger.

Mrs. Zoia Horn of Turlock, Calif., who called the trial "a black charade" was ordered jailed by U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman until the trial ends "or until you purge yourself."

The reluctant witness was the chief reference librarian at Bucknell University in nearby Lewisburg in 1970 when the government alleges the conspiracy was hatched.

Berrigan was imprisoned at the Lewisburg penitentiary at the time, serving a six-year sentence for destroying draft files in Maryland.

The government says Mrs. Horn was acquainted with Berrigan and also entertained some of the other defendants and FBI informer Boyd F. Douglas Jr. in her home.

Douglas testified Thursday that a telephone call from a nun, one of the defendants, alerted him to "a very hot letter" that allegedly sketched the Kissinger kidnap plot.

That letter wasn't read to the jury immediately as opposing lawyers tangled over whether Eqbal Ahmad, another defendant, ever telephoned Douglas to disclose its contents.

Thomas Files For Governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jim Thomas, native of Joplin and now a resident of Branson, Mo., filed today for the Democratic nomination for governor, a field that is already crowded.

His entry brought to nine the number of Democrats seeking the state's highest political office.

Thomas, who will be 47 next month, was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for congressman in the heavily Republican 7th District of Southwest Missouri in 1962 and 1964. He has been active in Democratic affairs since 1948 when he worked for the re-election of President Harry S. Truman.

He said if elected he would appoint a citizens cabinet representing all walks of life to help him establish government program priorities.

On ecology, he said "we are dying a little extra each day," and promised to make pollution control a top priority of his administration.

Thomas attended Joplin public schools, Missouri Southern College, Joplin and Rockhurst College in Kansas City.

Other Democrats in the race, in the order which they filed: William S. Morris; John Noel, St. Louis; Jackson County Prosecutor Joseph P. Teasdale of Kansas City; LeRoy Schantz of Springfield and Neosho, former director of employment security here; State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell of Hillsboro, and Robert D. Newbury of O'Fallon.

Only two Republicans have filed but a third has announced. State Rep. R. J. "Bus" King of Clayton and Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis have filed and State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond has announced.

Completing the field is Paul J. Leonard of Jackson who filed as a nonpartisan candidate.

Storm Warning System Planned By Commission

Six-county area mayors, law enforcement officials, civil defense personnel, radio station owners and managers, recently attended a special meeting at the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission's office in Malden to develop an early storm warning system for the Bootheel.

The 38 officials attending agreed that a central reporting system could be established, but the most difficult problem would be finding an effective alerting system. The problem of building an alerting process to inform citizens of an approaching tornado during the late night hours and early morning still plagues the concerned citizens.

Bill Wellborn, Research Analyst of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, said, "Each year tornados pose the greatest potential danger to life and property in the Bootheel. To meet this perennial threat, we (the planning commission) invited H. W. Waldheuser, Meterologist with the U. S. National Weather Service, Lambert Field, St. Louis, to assist us in developing a storm warming system."

Waldheuser expressed the desires of the U. S. National Weather Service, to assist in alert storm plagued Bootheel citizens of approaching tornados.

Wellborn suggested in addition to a network of storm spotters, a "hot line" should be opened direct from the U. S. National Weather Service headquarters in St. Louis to Malden from which weather warning information could be disseminated to Bootheel sheriff's departments and civil defense directors. Once in the hands of the County Civil Defense Directors, this warning would be passed on to schools, hospitals, etc. by telephone, and to the general public by means of sirens. Wellborn went on to say, this hot line could prove particuarly valuable after midnight when most people have their radios and televisions turned off.

Dick Wiethan, owner of Radio Station KTCB in Malden said, "Most radio stations in the Bootheel could return to the air and broadcast warnings after normal sign off if a severe weather bulletin is issued thru this hot line.

Wellborn concluded by saying, coordination between Bootheel cities and counties will be the key to the successful operation of an early storm warning system and the planning commission is prepared to extend any effort necessary to effect such coordination.

Jobless Rate Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dipped in February, and workers' average earnings kept well ahead of the rise in living costs, the government reported today

The jobless rate declined from 5.9 to 5.7 per cent of the work force, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The bureau said today's rate was the lowest in 17 months— since the 5.5 per cent of October 1970.

It also said average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank and file workers—more than half the nation's employment total—rose 35 cents per week to $130.27 because of the rise in the length of the work week.

The bureau's report said this represented an earnings gain of $7.66 or 6.2 per cent over the past year. The 3.4 per cent rise in consumer prices over the same period left workers with a net wage gain of $3.24 per week.

The actual number of unemployed persons last month remained unchanged at 5.4 million, but after seasonal adjustment for the usual February rise in joblessness, the bureau figured it as a decline.

Total employment increased slightly from 79.1 million to 79.3 million, but was unchanged on a seasonally adjusted basis at 80.6 million, the report said.

A gain in service jobs was partly offset by a decline in construction work.

The length of the average work week rose 12 minutes to 37.2 hours. In manufacturing, the work week increased 24 minutes to 40.4 hours, highest in more than two years, the bureau said.

Average hourly earnings remained unchanged at $3.54, it said.

Unemployment among men dipped from 4.2 to 4 per cent for a total of 2.4 million. The jobless rate for women showed the biggest decline, from 5.5 to 5 per cent with a total of 1.5 million. The rate for teen-agers rose from 17.8 to 18.8 per cent with a total of 1.3 million, the report said.

The jobless rate for white workers dipped from 5.3 to 5.1 per cent with a total of 4.3 million. The rate for other races— mostly blacks—was down slightly from 10.6 to 10.5 per cent with a total of a little over one million, the bureau said.

The rate for white-collar workers declined from 3.6 to 3.3 per cent. This was mainly a result of a reduction in joblessness among professional and technical workers, whose rate moved down from 3.1 to 2.5 per cent, its lowest level in eight months, the bureau said.

The average duration of joblessness increased to 12.5 weeks in February. It had fluctuated between 11.4 and 12.6 weeks over the past 10 months, said the bureau.

Joblessness among Vietnam era veterans declined from 8.5 to 7.4 per cent for the lowest rate in more than a year.

"About 4.1 million veterans were in the labor force in February; 3.7 milion held jobs and 400,000 were unemployed," the bureau said.

The federal government has been conducting a special program to find jobs for returning veterans.

Rescue Workers Save 6-Year Old

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — A rescue worker carried 6-yearold Anthony Bernardino to safety early today after the boy had spent almost seven hours tightly wedged 27 feet down a narrow hole.

The dirt-caked and pale youngster said, "Hi, Mommy, hi Daddy," to his parents before being taken by helicopter to a medical center for observation. He was reported in good condition.

"How's Jimmy?" the boy added in reference to his 8year-old brother. The two were flying kites Thursday afternoon when Anthony tumbled into the hole on a road construction project in this Los Angeles suburb.

Rescue workers, newsmen and hundreds of onlookers cheered when the tiny boy was carried from a rescue shaft at 12:08 a.m.

"I never thought they wouldn't get him," his mother Sandra said. "I just wondered how long it was going to take."

At times rescue workers could hear the boy crying, then laughing hysterically.

Jim Bernardino, the boy's father, said, "I'm really happy. They (rescue workers) really did a good job."

Hospital attendants said the youngster apparently suffered no serious injuries.

As workers sank a 30-foot rescue shaft adjacent to the hole in which Anthony was trapped, Dr. William Baker of El Monte talked with him through a stethescope extended on plastic tubing. Oxygen was pumped to within inches of Anthony's face.

Pioneer 10

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Pioneer 10, the fastest spacecraft ever launched, sped beyond the moon in record time today and streaked on toward the planet Jupiter and an eternal journey through the stars.

Flying with the spacecraft was a message for alien civilizations which might exist beyond our solar system.

Just 11 hours and 40 minutes after launch, Pioneer 10 zipped across the orbital path of the moon, which was tens of thousands of miles away from the spacecraft at the time. Apollo astronauts require three days to cover the same quarter-million-mile distance.

All systems on the payload were operating, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported.

Will Schools Get All Their Aid?

State Aid Drama

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The annual little drama over state school aid is being played out again in the 1972 legislative session.

At stake is whether the public schools will get all the state aid the 1971 legislature voted they should have. The key bill to solve the problem is resting in the House Education Committee.

Already passed by the Senate, the bill would provide for a fourth distribution of school aid May 15 this year, and on a permanent basis from now on. A similar temporary bill expired at the end of 1971.

Unless the bill is passed, the old law providing for three distributions in September, December and March will continue in effect.

Money to pay for the March 15 allotment already has been transferred to the state school moneys fund by comptroller John C. Vaughn—about $79.9 million. That brought to 192.4 million the total transferred from general revenue since last July 1.

Still due the schools is about $68.7 million, and unless the bill for a fourth distribution is passed, the schools would have to do without that (and more) until next September's allocation.

Vaughn said he thought collections would be ample to cover the $68.7 million if he is allowed to use all collections right up to May 15 before transferring the money to the school fund. He said a slight technical change in the Senate bill will be necessary to accomplish this.

The change would eliminate the necessity for him to certify the final amount at the end of April and would let him continue to put money in the school fund up to mid-May.

If the change is not made, Vaughn said, the schools won't get all the money due them for this fiscal year.

Since legislators are extremely sensitive to problems involving school finances, little trouble is expected in getting the Senate bill changed to open the way for full payment.

Whether the legislature will provide for another $35 million a year increase in state school aid for the 1972-73 fiscal year will not be determined until the major appropriation bills are worked out in their final form next month.

The legislature committed itself to such an increase and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has recommended that the obligation be met.

Release Hope Not Much

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. prisoners of war in Hanoi have been quoted as saying they have little hope that President Nixon's eight-point peace plan and China trip will lead to their release.

Nor do they believe that Nixon's steps are likely to bring peace.

The statements were attributed to Navy Lt. Cmdr. David Wesley Hoffman of San Diego and Cmdr. Walter Eugene Wilber of Columbia Crossroads, Pa.

Dr. George Wald, a NobelPrize-winning biologist, said the officers expressed those views in a tape-recorded interview with him last Feb. 19 during his visit to Hanoi.

"Of course, a presidential visit to Peking doesn't look like it's any way to stop the war," Wilber said in the interview. "It looks like a spectacular move to increase his prestige for the American people, for the presidential election."

Wald asked Wilber if he knew of Nixon's latest peace proposal.

"Yes, I've heard about that," replied Wilber, a prisoner since 1968. "Here again the wording in the eight-point program doesn't look sincere to me. It looks like it misses the point— to end the war is not in there."

Hoffman, who was shot down last Dec. 30, said of the Nixon plan, "I don't have the full details of all the points. The proposal is on the surface pretty good, but when does this 'agreement' start and when does the withdrawal begin?"

Wald answered that Nixon's plan calls for withdrawal to be complete six months after an agreement is reached but he said that completing the agreement "could take years."

"I don't see how," injected Hoffman. "I'm sorry to interrupt—how could it take years because I frankly don't see how Mr. Nixon can be re-elected unless something is done ...."

To Wald's statement that agreement could take years, Wilber replied:

"And that's the part which from a prisoner's point looks depressing. However, we realize there is progress being made, that there is more pressure being put on through the Congress and various things"

Hoffman added, "I think the biggest thing that our attention is centered on is the political campaign that is coming up."

"Is the country going to be able to elect a President who can end this thing?" Hoffman asked. "It seems to us that it's perfectly obvious that we have to withdraw, to end this war, and that's the only way we're going to go home."

Dexter Child Hit Unavoidabley

DEXTER — A seven year old Dexter girl was seriously injured this morning when struck by a pick-up truck being driven by Ralph Buchannan.

The girl, Rita Faye Mitchell, a second grade student, was waiting for the school bus on the north side of Stoddard Street when she darted from behind a parked car. Buchannan was driving west and according to the bus driver, Earl Slaughter, the accident could not have been avoided.

She is in serious condition at the Dexter Memorial Hospital with multiple fractures of the left leg and left arm.

Buchannan, a local roofer, was not given a ticket. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sides.

Something For All

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A black civil rights activist says a group has been formed to push a Democratic national ticket that would offer something for everyone—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for president and black U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York for vice president.

The Rev. James Bevel, longtime aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said Thursday the proposed ticket could satisfy both blacks and whites, as well as the women's liberation movement.

Bevel said slightly more than 100 persons, mostly Southern students, both black and white, now make up the organization that will promote the WallaceChisholm ticket.

They are preparing to mount a national drive and take the proposal to the floor of the Democratic National Convention, he said.

Mrs. Chisholm could not be reached for comment.

A spokesman for Wallace said he had not heard of the proposal and "just don't have any reaction at all."

POLITICIANS TO BLAME IN NORTHERN IRELAND

Sometimes the background to a story is not made clear in the news reports. This is especially so regarding foreign events. Take for example the latest trouble in Northern Ireland.

The impression is left that Irish Protestants and Irish Catholics simply cannot get along. Yet in southern Ireland there has been no conflict for 50 years. The difference is primarily economic discrimination in the North, a pattern that has existed there for centuries and was embodied in the system when Northern Ireland was separated from the South in 1921.

The discrimination is for political purposes, but religion is the instrument. Catholic voters are gerrymandered out of their voting rights. They are discriminated against in regard to housing, and seldom given a job unless there is a labor shortage in the area. The politicians have divided the people along these lines. This is the answer to the question: Why can't the Protestants and Catholics get along?

A BETTER BUSINESS INDICATOR

These days, just about anything serves as an "economic indicator."

For instance, despite high unemployment and business uncertainty, mortgage loan deliquencies at the nation's savings and loan associations "rose only slightly" during 1971, reports the United States Savings and Loan League.

Mortgage delinquencies continued to run at a rate of less than 1 per cent of all mortgages — .79 per cent in 1971 compared to .75 per cent during 1970.

Is this good? Not necessarily. During the bullish year of 1967, delinquencies ran .89 per cent.

As another possible "indicator," the rate of bankruptcy is on the rise again, reports Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. More than 200,000 bankruptcy petitions were filed in 1971, up 3.6 per cent from 1970.

Is this bad? Not necessarily. Bankruptcies rose steadily after World War II as consumer credit mushroomed, setting new records every year until they reached an all-time high in 1967. They declined somewhat thereafter and now are creeping up again.

O.K., try this for an "indicator." The outlook for executive employment is "extremely favorable," says Marc Savage, president of Executive Development Corp., and executive search firm.

About 20 months ago, presaging the recent recession, the organization recorded a sharp increase in unsolicited resumes from executives looking for jobs — about 50 per cent above usual levels. These unsolicited resumes have dropped in the last two months and continue to dwindle. At the same time, there has been a jump in requests from companies looking for executives.

This reflects an increasingly healthier economic climate overall, says Savage, who also notes that an analysis of resumes indicates that executives in the hard-hit aerospace industry have largely been relocated.

Now this does sound good. We think.

WALL STREET WHISPERS

"When they say that the most important benefits are the ones you don't know about, just try to figure out the ones that belong to the United Mine Workers. For some 20 years, the UMW Pension and Welfare Fund assets have been sitting in a checking account with the National Bank of Washington, doing nothing, not collecting a cent in interest. Nobody knows why or how, and nobody ain't telling ... not even the actual amount, which has been estimated at about $50 million dollars. Now that the courts have ordered the pension fund money withdrawn and put elsewhere where it can earn a dollar, the big question is what will National Bank of Washington do about the $11.5 million dollars that the court insist must be added to the pot to make up for what the money would have earned if invested for all those years. The odds are that there will be no appeal since it might take several years and meanwhile it would cost the bank some $600,000 or $700,000 each year no matter who finally won.

"There is no question that True Davis (formerly from St. Joseph, Mo.), the former U. S. ambassador and now president of the bank, is as clean as a whistle since he came on the scene. True is well-known on the Washington social circuit, which doesn't hurt any when you're out giving the other big banks a run for top spot." -- Reprinted from Finance magazine.

EXPLORATION BY ROBOT

Navy engineers in San Diego have put together an aquatic robot with a remotely controlled television camera. In the words of a certain commercial slogan, it's the next best thing to begin there.

The camera is guided by the head motions of an abovewater operator. Every time he turns or tilts his head, the underwater camera does the same, transmitting an image to a television screen held in front of the operator by a head harness. The effect is startling similar to direct vision, reports New York Times science writer Walter Sullivan.

Other systems under deveopment may eventually provide three-dimensional vision, hearing and even a rudimentary sense of a feeling by means of manipulators electronically controlled by movements of the operator's hand and fingers.

The engineers look to a time when a man, sitting in a warm, dry, safe environment, can "swim" to virtually unlimited depths, turning his head to look here and there as he performs such tasks as manipulating valves on oil rigs, collecting seabottom samples or opening hatches on sunken vessels.

Such "teleoperators" would be even more effective than an actual man on the scene, who would be hampered by cumbersome life-support equipment and the emotional stresses of a hazardous situation.

While the Navy is interested only in terrestrial applications, it is possible that someday astronauts, sitting in shirtsleeves in orbiting command modules, will remotely explore such hostile planets as Jupiter or Venus through sensory hookups with robots on the surface.

TECHNOLOGY: WILL IT MAKE JOBS OR TAKE THEM AWAY?

"How long will it be before this circuit learns your job?" That's how the poster went. And it scared a lot of people. Rightly so. But there's a bright side to the "technological revolution" that most people forget.

Modern technology has actually created more jobs than it has taken away. People with a minimum of technical education can expect to earn as much, and pull as much weight, as the average college graduate when he starts out. In fact, the main problem today is finding people to fill technician's jobs. One out of three of them go begging. Yet well over 1,000,000 more will open in the next few years.

Quite a problem for our businessmen. Quite an opportunity for our children.

Here's what you can do about it.

If you're a parent, send for a new booklet called "25 technical careers you can learn in two years or less." It's written by the U. S. Office of Education, in cooperation with The Conference Board. It describes technical careers in almost every branch of science. And tells about the new, intensive training programs that can prepare your children for those careers. To get a copy, free, write:

Questions are often asked about the difference between mayonnaise and salad dressing. Mayonnaise is a stable emulsion of oil droplets in water; it doesn't separate because it is stablized with egg yolk, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture home economists. Salad dressing contains less oil and a cooked starch paste which substitutes for part of the egg.

REDWOOD SUCCESS STORY

Conservation and environment are two words that become so charged with emotionalism that reasoned discussion of either the environment or conservation is difficult. One of the most spectacular examples of conservation confusion has had to do with the California Coast Redwoods. Mr. Kramer Adams, writing in his revealing book "The Redwoods", says, "To most Americans, conservation of the redwoods has come to mean consignment of forested areas to park or wilderness status, untouched, inviolate. This is a worthwhile and essential effort. ..but it is better described by the term 'preservation'. It is only one of the elements contributing to the objectives of conservation, which since Teddy Roosevelt's day has been universally defined as wise use of our natural resources." Mr. Adams describes how intensive forest management as practiced by present-day timber companies has had the same effect so far as increased wood production goes as making our commercial forests of redwoods twice as large.

The nation's major timber companies have contributed vast tracts of redwoods to national parks. At the same time, these companies provide a livelihood for some 20,000 workers. Forty redwood products companies, since 1960, have spent more than $100 million in new plants, equipment and improvements. And, in the next 10 years, capital investments in new mills for producing redwood plywood, pulp, paper and particle board will add up to another $100 million.

Obviously, as Mr. Kramer Adams points out, the redwoods are far from a disappearing species. His book is must reading for anyone who sincerely wishes to learn the truth about conservation and use with regard to one of the nation's most valuable, renewable resources... the redwoods. In fact, its message applies to all forest lands.

WORLD'S LARGEST LASER

Lasers traditionally come in the form of rods, but Owens-Illinois has recently produced laser elements for an Atomic Energy Commission laser which employs a series of nine discs, each twelve inches in diameter.

The nine-disc laser is designed to produce 10,000 joules of energy in two nanoseconds: in layman's language that is five trillion watts, making it the world's largest, in terms of both size and power.

SCHOLASTIC GREENBACKS

Education, like everything else, may be in for revamping in the months and years ahead--if a "Black Paper", recently published by a group of British educationists, psychologists, publicists and parents, relative to the status of education in England, may be taken as a general criteria. It charges that the standard of education in British schools is lower than it was in 1914. Blame for this state of affairs is laid, by inference, at the door of the U. S. educational system, which has proceeded on the theory that children learn better when discipline in the schools is relaxed. In Britain, this "progressive" educational philosophy seems to have had discouraging results. The average attainments in reading, spelling, and mechanical and problem arithmetic are now appreciably lower than they were 55 years ago. Reading standards are poor, not only among school children but also among teachers. As a result of progressive education, the "Black Paper" reports that up to 25 per cent of college-level students are semiliterate. Many British industrialists say, to their dismay, that even some university graduates are unable to spell properly when they take jobs.

A diploma needs the backing of an educated man. Without that, it is like printing press money--non-negotiable. Institutions of higher learning that issue scholastic greenbacks instead of the time-honored sheepskins must sooner or later face a day of reckoning.

From a speech by Milton Unton, President of Belloit College and reprinted fromthe Jefferson City Post-Tribune.

"I've about reached the end of my tolerance for our society's one-sided sympathy for the misfit, the ne'er-do-well, the drug addict, the chronic criminal, the loser-in-general, the underdog. I feel it's time for someone to stand up and say: "I'm for the upperdog!"

"I'm for the one who sets out to do something and does it; the one who recognizes the problems at hand and endeavors to deal with them; the one who isn't blaming someone else's failings, who doesn't consider it 'square' to wonder what more he can do instead of why he shouldn't be doing what he's doing.

"Whether 'privileged' or 'underprivileged', each of us should be judged bywhat he does with what he inherits—not merely excused as a 'victim of his environment.'

"The quality of any society is directly related to the quality of the individual excellence and achievement are not only respected but encouraged.

Building a better society will only be done by those who take seriously their responsibility for making the most of their native ability, for getting the job done.

VICTORY IS FINAL

An old enemy has finally been flushed out, making the surrender of the Japanese Imperial Army complete. At least it is assumed that he is the last living survivor of the once mighty force that held the United States and her allies at bay during most of World War II. The bearded Sgt. Shoichi Yokoi, apprehended at the cave on Guam which has been his home for 28 years, said he would like to go back to Japan and then climb a mountain where he could meditate. He had been driven to his hiding place by United States forces in 1944 and had not surrendered because he was afraid he would be executed.

Sgt. Yokoi, now 56, must have found the world he reentered a strange one indeed. To him television was unbelievable and so was the flight time of his trip back home to Japan in a jet plane---three hours. When Sgt. Yokoi ends his meditation and has time to catch up on many years of developments, he will find that a lot has changed. His native Japan, which was taking a terrific beating at the time he fled to his cave, has become a highly respected and democratic country, thanks to the genius and benevolence of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his staff who performed a miracle in setting the defeated country on a course to great achievement. He will find that Russia, which obtained with intrigue and subtrefuge unwarranted title to Japanese possessions, has emerged as a superpower with the hydrogen bombbut remains the same old aggressor. He will learn that the Chinese communists, with the aid of some top U. S. officials, drove the fine leaders of the Republic of China into the sea and onto the island of Formosa. But he will find new hope in Japan, just as the entire world has hope in her. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Otto Preminger, a man whose own temperament is as unpredictable as nitroglycerin, believes that violence on the screen is more dangerous to youthful minds than sex scenes.

"I let my own children go to any picture and read any magazine," he said. "And I discuss things with them.

"I think the only thing dangerous to young children is to show them acts of violence. I don't think sex is too harmful or should be made too mysterious.

"But acts of violence lead to war."

The producer conceded, however, that his viewpoint was debatable.

"Some psychiatrists think you get violence out of your system by being shown scenes of it," he said.

Preminger has produced, directed or acted in 39 pictures since 1942, and his bald pate and pendulous lip have become Hollywood landmarks. His latest film, "Such Good Friends," is rated by critics as one of his better ones.

It is said that Otto can reduce even the most egocentric actor or actress to a quivering mass of outraged jelly quicker than any other producer in the industry. But he feels that this picture of him as a studio autocrat is overdrawn. He is really, he says, a mild man.

The producer, trained to be a lawyer in his native Vienna, likes controversy and sophisticated living. Asked to say what he thought life was in one word, he replied, "Enjoyment."

He put his philosophy this way:

"The greatest strength a person can achieve is to live by his own standards and convictions. I could not work if I worried about what others think or say about me."

Work is the keystone of his life and his only hobby. He and his staff filter 50 or more scripts a month seeking a story he feels he can turn into a notable film.

These are the things Preminger likes:

"Learning from young people—music, vodka and good red wine—modern paintings—the smells and flowers of spring—black and white furniture—beautiful women—foods I can't eat because they make me fat—the privacy and excitement of New York City—the smell of leather—traveling— and active, easygoing people who get things done."

These are what Otto dislikes:

"The feel of silk, it makes me nervous—violence, wars—noise—ugly fat women, although I feel sorry for them—the crime wave in New York streets—the lack of control that leads to wars—people who are liars or submissive. I prefer outspoken people even though I disagree with them."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: The Justice Department and International Telephone and Telegraph are now trying to lie their way out of a scandal over the suspicious, sudden settlement of a landmark anti-trust suit against ITT.

In earlier columns, we disclosed a remarkable ITT memo indicating the Justice Department granted the favorable settlement in exchange for cash support of the upcoming Republican convention in San Diego.

The author of the memo, ITT lobbyist Dita Beard, told us she arranged the settlement herself in a private conversation with Attorney General John Mitchell at a Kentucky dinner party.

Mitchell refused to talk to us. A spokesman, John Hushen, urged us to withhold our story until he could "get our ducks in a row." He then waited three days before calling us back with a terse statement from Mitchell.

The statement says the Attorney General "was not involved in any way with the Republican National Committee convention negotiations and had no knowledge of anyone from the committee or elsewhere dealing with International Telephone and Telegraph."

This is false. In mid-May last year, California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and an aide, Edgar Gillenwaters, met with Mitchell in his Washington office to discuss efforts to hold the convention in San Diego.

MITCHELL MISLEADS

We could not reach Reinecke, but Gillenwaters told us he and Reinecke personally informed Mitchell that ITT had offered to put up as much as $400,000 to support a GOP convention in San Diego.

"He liked the idea of (having the convention in) San Diego." Gillenwaters said of Mitchell. "He didn't need any persuading. He said, "If you can do it, more power to you."

ITT also issued a statement on the matter which insisted that only its lawyers were authorized to deal with the Justice Department on the anti-trust cases. "Neither Mrs. Beard nor anyone else except legal counsel was authorized to carry on such negotiations," the statement said.

This is also false. Felix Rohatyn, an investment banker and director of ITT, told us he held a series of about a half-dozen secret meetings during the merger negotiations with Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst. Rohatyn said he was specifically authorized to "Make the case on the economic side" by ITT President Harold S. Geneen.

Rohatyn's acknowledgement also puts the lie to an earlier statement by Kleindienst, who has now been named to replace Mitchell as Attorney General. On December 13, Kleindienst wrote to Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien to deny that high-level political pressure had been exerted on the Justice Department's anti-trust staff in the ITT case.

"The settlement between the Department of Justice and ITT was handled and negotiated exclusively by Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren (then head of the anti-trust division)," the Kleindienst letter said.

Obviously, if Kleindienst was holding secret talks with Rohatyn on the case, it could not have been "handled and negotiated exclusively" by McLaren and ITT's lawyers.

UNDER THE DOME

Senator Jennings Randolph, the West Virginia Democrat who fought for the eighteen year old vote for 30 years, recently went home to personally escort a college student to the voter registration desk. The unawed young lady registered Republican -- Senator Marlow Cook, R-Ky., ranking minority member of the Senate Penitentiaries Subcommittee, will soon be taking a hard look at the federal prisons rehabilitation programs. Cook hopes to kick off two days of hearings this April with testimony by James Hoffa.

As a member of the powerful Senate Commerce Committee, Indiana Democrat Vance Hartke will have a lot to say about whether the national no-fault automobile insurance bill ever reaches the Senate floor. His opinion may be colored somewhat by the fact that he is a full-fledged, dues-paying ($175 per year) "sustaining member" of the American Trial Lawyers Association -- the lawyers' group which is lobbying mightily to kill the no-fault proposal ...

The black-owned Afro-American newspaper appeared on the newsstand in a Senate dining room recently and stayed there exactly one day before irate Senate Restaurants Manager Joseph Diamond banned it. His explanation: "Nobody asked me for permission to sell it" --- Doug Toms, Federal highway safety director, may leave his job to take a crack at politics in Washington State. Toms was bitterly disappointed when he couldn't get Detroit to put airbags in all passenger cars by the 1974 models. He recuperated from the setback with a breezy 21-day junket to Japan to visit auto plants and see whether Honda can develop a safer motorcycle.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Revolt Against Meany? -- Labor Chief Needled in Secret Session; Agrees to Help Launch Vast National Unionizing Drive.

By Victor Riesel -- Washington -- This is a major story in a minor key. It pivots on two flurries of history. One affected George Meany's heart last Thanksgiving Day. The other ever so unnoticeably affected his absolute command of America's powerful labor movement last St. Valentine's Day. The second flurry came behind the traditionally tightly closed doors of labor's Executive Council mid-winter session, of course, in Bal Harbour, Fla.

In the words of one member of the high command: "There was a minor revolution. There was a major change in the decision-making dynamics of the AFL-CIO."

Since what affects the AFL-CIO's decision-making affects all of the U. S., -- politically, industrially, socially and internationally -- this "minor revolution" is a major development.

For the first time since Meany took the presidency of the AFL, and later the merged movement, he was challenged by one of his loyalists. In the supposed secrecy of labor's own guarded seaside position room, "Mr. Labor" was criticized, questioned and confronted on basic issues of consultation, on political expenditures, on "federation policy" on the Hill, and attacked for not unleashing a national unionization offensive -- organizing the unorganized.

This was not an attack on the power of the implacable cigar - and word-biting chief. The flurry came from the angered 57 year old Seafarers' leader, Paul Hall, who later told other union chiefs: "God damn it, I love the old man, but let's get the movement into organizing business again." But during the week-long high-command session Paul Hall, who is also chairman of the AFL-CIO's Standing Committee on Organization, and Meany got heated and some of love's labor was lost. The irked Seafarer was strongly backed by the "young militant" Jerry Wurf, president of the public employees, the AFL-CIO's swiftest growing union.

It all began after Meany recovered from his heart flurry, put in hard hours in the office, went up the Hill to lobby personally, sat through an entire day's session of the National Commission on Productivity -- and he and his public relations specialists decided to saturate the media. They had hit the news magazines' front pages. So now came the mass interviews with at least one magazine's editorial board, television appearances and an agreement to sit for one of Mike Wallace's "60 Minutes" productions.

During a magazine interview Feb. 21, Meany was asked, in effect, why the AFL-CIO did not have more of a percentage of America's workers unionized. He snapped at the U. S. News and World Report Editors, "I don't know. I don't care -- Why should we worry about organizing groups of people who do not appear to want to be organized?"

That is Meany's fashion. He never wastes words or glances. His retort in print looked tougher than he sounds. And when, during the AFL-CIO Executive Council session, his staff distributed copies of it as a public relations coup, Hall hit the fan.

The sailor turned to the plumber and said: "I was very distressed -- if you are quoted accurately." Hall knew well that it was accurate. Meany said it was. Meany explained and defended his words, Hall steamed in on him relentlessly, saying, in effect, that these words and picture captions could be used against the movement's organizing campaigns.

Hall was passing on some needles handed him the Friday previous to the council's Feb. 14 opening session. That Friday, Feb. 11, he had been visited by a group of powerful labor chiefs. They were part of the Organizing Committee of the movement's virtually unknown but important Industrial Union Department which was originally launched by the late Walter Reuther as the legions to carry him up the road to massive 1930s style organizing drives.

The visitors complained to Hall that the federation was losing members. One Electrical Brotherhood union leader reportedly said, "I have to win 100,000 new members a year just to stay even." They wanted Hall to unleash some old-fashioned campaigns and shake up the nation as well as the AFL-CIO.

It was said that the national AFL-CIO was "attriting" out the organizing field staff. And would Hall do something about it? He said he would. So he did. Not long after the high command had seen a Committee on Political Education (COPE)-produced film talking of the nation's social ills, Hall raised the issue of Meany's "Who Cares?" quote.

Finally, Meany cooled it by saying, okay, you're the chairman of the Organizing Committee, why don't you call a meeting? Let me know, I'll be there.

Paul Hall, who has a Metternich touch, now is planning one shortly in Washington. We'll know by the next big command session in May if the Bal Harbour flurries are just that, or a minor revolt or a major upheaval for labor and the nation. If Hall, at 57, leads the legions needed for an organizing drive to successful campaigns, he could someday lead labor's own high command.

Let Me Play A Movie Critic For Once in My Life

I went to the theater today and saw a movie, which I'll never forget as long as I live. This movie was a premiere preview for all the lady's in Sikeston to go see free of charge for the afternoon of Feb. 29, 1972.

When the movie first started, I thought it was going to be a boaring same old kind of story, that couldn't hold my interst. But after about the first ten or fifteen minutes passed, I was wishing this story would never end. Of course at the end of the story, you can see why the beginning had to be that way.

If you want to see a story of real true human life as it really is for male or female, then go see "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you want to see the most sacred love story that was ever put on a movie screen. Then "Long Ago Tomorrow" is for you.

If you want to take a look at your own life, and realize how well off you are in so many little ways, and how the littlest things on this earth, could mean so much to some people. Little things that we all just take for granted, You must see "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you feel like really laughing, and feeling real happiness. There is a lot of little humors in this movie, and to really sit in a theater and actually feel real happiness. This you'll get in the movie "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you go to movies and never shed a tear. You had better take a hankie along or better yet, take a box of tissues with you. Because I'm sure there will be a few males that will have the need for them too, as this story really gets to your heart, female or male.

"Long Ago Tomorrow," starring Malcolm McDowell, has to be one of the best true to life love storys, ever put on a movie screen in the history of the movie makers. Malcolm McDowell will have to be rewarded for such great acting.

I just wish I could have some way to get every adult minded person to go see this movie, be it male or female, black or white, Catholic or Protestant. You must see this movie from the very beginning, to the very end, to really feel that you've never seen or felt such happiness or sadness, humor or sorrow.

Their are people of all kinds of beliefs in this world. Some don't believe in any curse words or drinking liquor. Their is one very small part with drinking liquor, and very few minor curse words in this movie, and if you miss this story because of someone getting a little drunk or a few words, then you've done an injustice to yourself, as the story will make up for these few words or booze.

Some people don't believe in sex movies. There is sex in this story, but the most beautiful human life sex, that we have all lived at one time or other in our life. Not naked bodys jumping all over the screen in this movie, but real beauty of sex in life as God intended.

This movie should be seen by all the females who gripe about having to work, having to cook meals, having to run their children here and there, always tired because so much has to be done. When you see this movie, you'll finally realize just how wonderful these things become in our life.

This movie should be seen by all the males, who gripe because they have to hold a job everyday, and have to accept the responsibility of a family, and never seem to find the time to just sit around and enjoy doing nothing. You'll finally realize just how wonderful these things in our daily life are.

All young adults male and female, will fully enjoy and understand this story from beginning to end, this I know. And if all of us middle age adults and over, would just take time out to go see this movie. I'm sure they would all feel like something has been added to their life. And most people in their own special way, will say, "Thank You Dear God," for our normal days and ways of life today.

All this you will get from this movie "Long Ago Tomorrow." Plus I'm sure many, many more little things I didn't write about. Please do yourself a big favor, and go see this movie.

One great work of art, I want everyone to see.

Dr. Popp Guest Of Kiwanis Club

Dr. Carl Popp, guest speaker at the Tuesday night meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Ramada Inn, spoke on heart attacks.

Dr. Popp said that the intensive care unit at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital was opened with federal aid in 1970. Since the intensive care unit has been in operation the mortality rate caused by heart attack has been reduced ten to fifteen percent. Nurses are trained in coronary care at the expense of the federal government. Three nurses have been trained at the University of Missouri-Columbia. One of the nurses is still at the hospital and she trains nurses for the Missouri Delta Community Hospital and other hospitals as well. Thirty-three nurses have been trained in coronary care at the hospital since the program started.

In a report made to the Federal government in January 1971 the mortality rate had dropped ten to 12 percent. Not one man below the age of 65 died as the result of a heart attack in the hospital.

Six hundred thousand die every year of heart attack and half of these do not reach a hospital. Many misinterpret the signs of heart trouble. Some of the causes of heart trouble are hardening of the arteries, smoking, diabetes, over work and strain.

"Some of the symptoms of heart attack are chest pains under the chest bone, it is a dull pain and feels as if some one is squeezing you," Popp said and continued, "the pain goes up to the jaw and down into the arm, you start perspiring and grow weak."

"Everyone should have regular check ups and a cardiogram every year," Popp said. "One thing to remember is that of the 600,000 deaths caused by heart attack, 165,000 die before the age of 65.

Claude Benney was the program chairman and introduced Dr. Popp. Oliver Poos of Edwardsville, Ill. was a guest. Tom Lambert, associated with Ferguson Clinic, was introduced as a new member.

Dave Bowman, president, announced that Pancake Day tickets would be distributed at the next meeting.

Mother Better Check On Daughter And Her Steady

Dear Ann Landers: About a year ago my two teen-age daughters sent away for your booklet on Necking and Petting And Where To Draw The Limits. They said it was a good booklet and they learned a lot from it. But they disagreed with your advice that a couple should keep both feet on the floor at all times. They insist that a couple who sets their minds to it can get into plenty of trouble even when both feet are on the floor. We had quite a discussion on this subject and I had to admit they were right -- especially when it comes to standing close together and kissing good-night.

The older girl is 16 now and she has a steady boyfriend. I often find them lying on the couch -- side by side, watching TV. The door to the den is usually wide open and there's always a dim light in the room. When I see them like this I say, half joking, "Remember now -- Ann Landers says "both feet on the floor." They yell back, "Yeah -- Old Annie has a thing or two to learn. Somebody ought to tell HER the facts of life."

I have no answer to that line and I hope you can provide me with one. Will you try? They promised to listen.

P.S. What do you think of passion marks? The kids call them hickeys. Also, last week when we came home early from a movie our daughter and her steady were upstairs. We didn't realize he was in the house until they both came down ten minutes later. My daughter said he was in her bedroom looking at her bulletin board. What do you think? ---Old Fashioned Mother in Little Rock

Dear Old Mother: I think these kids can use all the information they can get, plus a little closer supervision. They sound healthy, normal, eager and ready to sample all of life's goodies. Continue to keep the lines of communication open between you and your daughters and write again if you feel the need.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is three years old. For the past six months he has been waking up between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning -- screaming. He says he is afraid of the dark. I try to comfort him and tell him there is nothing to be afraid of but it usually takes about 15 minutes to quite him down.

This past week my husband has been very short-tempered about these nightly outburst. He works hard and needs his sleep. He says it's my fault because I have been catering the boy -- that from now on the child will get a hard spanking when he screams at night and then he'll learn not to bother us. The last three nights it has been worse than ever. After the spankings the child cried for at least a half an hour.

I have pleaded with my husband to leave a small light on but he says the boy will be a sissy, that he has to learn there is nothing to be afraid of. This problem is creating trouble between my husband and me. I wish you would tell me who is right and what should be done about the child's fear of the dark and the nightly screaming spells. -- Michigan Mother.

Dear Mother: The child's fear of the dark and the nightly screaming spells are symptoms of other problems. I hope you can persuade your husband to go with you to a counselor to discuss it. If he won't go -- go without him. I suggest a dim light in the boy's room until he settles down. The spankings should be terminated immediately. They will only add to the child's anxieties and he has enough already.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, with 16 cents worth of stamps to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Inside Religion

By Lester Kinsolving

"Two or three of our member denominations are pro-Arab, and we have many retired missionaries who are pro- Arab," explained Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, President of the National Council of Churches (NCC), last January in Berkeley, Calif.

"So a couple of times we have passed resolutions on the Middle East which I have been most unhappy about," added the brilliant and charming leader of the nation's largest Protestant organization (33 denominations, 42.5 million members).

One month later, at its quarterly meeting in Charlotte, N.C., the General Board of the NCC began what may be a significant turnabout - which should provide a badly needed contribution to the cause of bettering Judeo- Christian relations. For the 200-member General Board finally buried a resolution introduced last June by Dr. Frank Maria, of Warner, New Hampshire.

Maria is one of three NCC delegates from the Antiochian Orthodox Christian Archdioceseof New York and All North America (which until recently was known as the Syrian Orthodox Church).

He has used his credentials and prestige as a member of the NCC General Board to secure media time and space throughout the U.S. - in order to deliver such preposterous pronouncements as: "Egypt was no threat to Israel in 1967" and "Israelis treat Christians and Moslems like Hitler treated the Jews.'.

MARIA's resolution proposed to the NCC was so strident as to be described by The Christian Century magazine (certainly no friend of Israel's) as: "one- sided and implicitly pro- Arab."

Neither Maria (who was ill) nor any of his fellow Antiochians was present in Charlotte for the debate; which absence seemed appropriate. For, as this column previously reported (evoking Maria's written outrage), in 1969 the Antiochians contributed no financial support at all to the NCC's $20 million budget - despite the denomination's (claimed) membership of 100,000.

Maria has a Canadian counterpart who has also been using his church post as a conduit for Arab propaganda. The Rev. A. C. Forrest of Toronto is editor of the United Church of Canada's newspaper, The Observer (circulation: 350,000) which is widely regarded as the Maple Leaf edition of The Arabian Nights.

The Rev. Mr. Forrest has therefore been publicly saluted in Cairo by Secretary General Abdel Hassouna of the Arab League, who hailed him as the outstanding advocate of the Arab cause in North America. And Forrest has been able to sell his writings in the U.S. - to what he calls "my editors": Karl Karsch of Presbyterian Life, Martin Bailey of the United Church Herald and Henry McCorkle of The Episcopalian.

These denominational house-organ editors have apparently and excitedly assumed that Forrest, in his frequent travels to Arab countries, is offering them valuable and accurate exclusives - despite the Toronto Telegram's report of his "pro-Arab, anti- Semitic and dishonest journalism."

But in addition to his eloquent cries of alleged "Zionist persecution," Forrest regularly unearths that hoary ploy of alleging Zionist domination of the secular press - in such writing as:

"There are a lot of gutless editors, publishers and public officials about."

This calibre of response has apparently awed his denomination's leaders - even when the Rev. Donald Keating became so appalled at Forrest's editing that he quit the United Church's ministry in disgust.

Yet the Rev. Mr. Forrest apparently feels so invincible and established in his postiion that last January he rashly consented to a TV debate with the Rev. Dr. Franklin Littell, Professor of Religion at Philadelphia's Temple University and President of Christians Concerned for Israel. Sample exchange:

LITTELL; "You put out a special issue on Arab refugees in October of 1967?"

FORREST: "Our compassion arises becaue the Christian Churches, for whose publications I was writing, asked me to make that survey - they are concerned with humanity generally."

LITTELL: "What was the date of the special issue you did on Jewish refugees?"

FORREST: "I have never done a number on the Jewish refugees."

LITTELL: "Really?"

NEW MADRID BAPTIST CHURCH has designated a former parsonage at 1230 Scott Street a foreign missionary family residence.

Former Parsonage To House Missionaries

NEW MADRID — New Madrid Baptist Church has designated a former parsonage at 1230 Scott Street as a foreign missionary family residence.

The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe, pastor, said the church is making the home available rent-free to a missionary family who will be on a year's furlough from foreign duty.

Many churches are providing this missionary outreach program, the Rev. Wolfe said, because it is difficult for missionary families to make living arrangements, either renting or buying, when they are home for just a year.

The modern three-bedroom brick dwelling will be redecorated, furnished and utilities will be paid for the missionary family during their occupancy.

Florida Trips To Be Campaign Prize

All systems are go for a Sunday School attendance campaign scheduled to begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 306 South Kingshighway.

According to Pastor T. A. McDonough, this will be the most thrilling attendance contest that has ever been seen in the 32-year history of the church. Crowds are expected to exceed 500 by Easter, the concluding date of the contest, he predicts.

Sunday at 9:30 a.m. attenders will watch the Space Men enter the capsule on the church lawn, and the countdown will continue toward blast-off. At blast-off those who are watching will participate in the launching of helium filled balloons bearing their name, as well as the name and address of the church. More than 350 people are expected to participate in this event.

The following goals have been set for the five-Sunday campaign: March 5 -- 350; March 12 -- 360; March 19 -- 375; and April 2 (Easter) -- 500.

The following prizes are being offered:

GRAND PRIZE: Awarded to the one acquiring the most points above the 10,000 minimum will be free Florida vacation, free passes to tour Cape Kennedy, auto expenses both ways, and the space craft with blast-off sound track. (Any child winning the vacation must be accompanied by adults between ages 25 and 65, whose expenses will also be furnished. Should, for any unforseen reason, the vacations be canceled, other prizes will be substituted.)

SECOND PRIZE: Free Florida vacation with auto expenses paid both ways. (Same rules above apply.)

THIRD PRIZE: Free Florida Vacation. (Same rules stated above apply.)

SPECIAL PRIZES: The one sending the helium-filled balloon the fartherest distance and have it returned by a person to one of the church services by March 12 will receive an astronaut Bible. The one returning the balloon will also receive an Astronaut Bible.

The Contest will be concluded with the Spring Revival Crusade with Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Scott of Oklahoma City, Okla. The revival will begin March 19 and will be concluded with an Easter Pageant, produced and directed by Mrs. Scott, Easter Sunday.

NCC To Draft Policy Statement On Abortion

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches has decided to establish a task force to draft a policy statement on abortion.

The force, to be appointed by Dr. Cynthia Wedel, president of the NCC, will include representatives of the Roman Catholic Church, which has observers at the midwinter meeting of the board.

A committee of the NCC recommended in a preconvention report that Catholics be invited to join the council, whose membership consists of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Greek Orthodox religious bodies with about 42 million members. There are about 48 million Roman Catholics in the United States.

The statement on abortion is to come up for debate at the meeting of the full national council in June. If adopted, it would be the first official position by the NCC on abortion and family planning.

The board decided on the task force after receiving from a study committee Friday a report on abortion which made no recommendations but merely reviewed the subject. The 22member lay committee discussed the theological, social and ethical implications.

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON

By Dr. William H. Taft

For March 5, 1972

Scripture: Isaiah 28:16; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Mathew 16:13-20; Ephesians 2:19-22

FOUNDATION OF THE CHURCH

For more than a decade church going has been on the decline in the United States. In a report by the Gallop Poll recently it was revealed that only 40 per cent of the people attend church on a regular basis.

Usually when such a problem is placed before the persons involved the immediate question is "Why?"

During the next three months these lessons will evolve around the nature and mission of the Church. Some answers will be sought to find out why the church today is pressured by stress and strain.

Most of these lessons will come from the New Testament which is a logical source. Yet there are roots that must be reviewed from the Old Testament.

Today's mission is to discover what is the foundation of the Church. At the same time possibly some answers may be found as to why the Church is having problems.

Three approaches have been suggested for the start of this study.

First: If the Church is having such difficulties, why not just abolish it and create some other form of worship?

Second: A review of the functions of the Church might offer some clues to the problems. In this respect, one might seek to determine the role of the Church in the community.

Third: How useful is the Bible in aiding in this study? How much of the accounts prepared centuries ago can be useful today?

Today's message comes in part from Ephesians. Many Bible scholars feel this book was written by Paul while in prison.

Some researchers, however, feel it might have been written by one of Paul's friends who was well acquainted with his literary style. Conflicts exist too about the exact time, varying from thirty years after the crucifixion of Jesus to the year 95.

The Church was started around the teachings of Jesus. Yet in another sense it was built upon the teachings of the prophets in the Old Testament.

In Ephesians Jesus is the "cornerstone." Any builder realizes that a cornerstone gives strength and definition to a structure. And new buildings usually feature a ceremony to place the cornerstone! Too, it is not uncommon for a cornerstone to contain valuable documents that will be useful in later years.

A true Church is a reality that cannot be confined within the building of a special denomination. It need not be restricted by a specific creed, or doctrine, or even a Bible.

Ensworth Reisner once said in a sermon that "The true Church is founded by individuals who recognize what Peter and a myriad of saints through history have recognized: 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

People nineteen centuries ago were uncertain who Christ was. Four possibilities are presented: John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.

When Christ asked the disciples, Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." This was the answer He sought. Authorities again disagree on Peter's role. The first Church did not recognize Peter as its highest authority.

The new Interpreter's One-Volume Commentary says, "The designation of Peter as 'the rock' does not view him as the first bishop of Rome and the founder of the Roman hierarchy, but as the first witness of the Resurrection and therefore as the prime apostolic witness that God raised Jesus from the dead."

THE HARMONY ECHOES of Granite City, Ill., have two singing engagements in area churches Sunday. Their first appearance will be at Second Street Church of God in Sikeston during the morning worship service. The second will be at 2 p.m. at First General Baptist Church in Bertrand for the montly Scott County Singing Convention, which also will feature the Tolbert Sisters of Sikeston and Gosepl Crusaders of Bloomfield.

Those two schools are the first SEMO teams to reach the semifinals since 1969 when the Oran Eagles placed second behind Dixon, 76-74.

Charleston In 'L' Final

By DALE FORBIS
STANDARD SPORTSWRITER

POPLAR BLUFF — Except for that surprise upset of the Kennett Indians over the Dexter Bearcats, everything has gone pretty much as expected at Poplar Bluff this week in the Class L Regional. Last night there were two games in the semi final round of the regional, Cape Central beat the host Mules 72-61 and the Charleston Blue Jays emerged with a 68-57 win over the Kennett Indians. Thus, tomorrow night, the number one-seeded Central Tigers will meet the number two seeded Jays Friday night at 7:30 p.m. for the regional championship.

The opening game Thursday night had the Cape Central Tigers taking on a determined bunch from Poplar Bluff. Their determination may have hurt the boys from the Bluff City as mistakes cost them a 19-12 deficit after eight minutes of play. They played the highly rated Tigers fairly even the rest of the way. The teams were even in the second quarter with 20 points each. Cape led at half, 39-32.

Poplar Bluff played their best ball in the third period as they held a slim 17-15 advantage over the district's tallest quintest in that round. However, the Mules and their rookie coach suffered the frustration of not being able to chop anything off the Central lead in the final quarter. As a matter of fact the Mules again began to make mistakes and Central added to their lead by outscoring the Mules 18-12.

Scoring for the winners was led by 6-foot-3 guard Mike Uhls with 17. Dick Buxton was next with 16 as the 6-foot-4 forward was uncanny in his accuracy from the corner. Hunter Stiegemeyer was the other Tiger the score in twin figures for the victors who featured their usual balanced attack.

Even though Central was wearing their white home uniforms, it was the Mules court and it turned out to be their last game on it. Curtis Hinton closed out a sterling career by the top scorer with his 16 points for the Mules. As a matter of fact, the Mules top three scorers in the game and for the complete season were seniors. Closing out their careers as well for the purple-clad Mules were Kent Chronister, who scored 15, and John Griffin with 11.

In the second game, Charleston was installed as the heavy favorite. But, if it hadn't been for a torrid first half, the Indians might have pulled off something like the Woodland Cardinals did at Bloomfield last week. Charleston used the fast break and their ever-present rebound power to dominate the first half, 42-30. The Indians did not give up however, and came back to almost stop the fast break and held the Jays even in the second half, 27-26. The team from Charleston made several mistakes which undoubtably contributed to the closeness of the final 16 minutes.

Once again, the big man for Charleston was Albri Cassell. The 6-foot-4 cornerman pumped in 19 points and helped Dan Smith control the boards. Al Gordon also scored 19 for coach Lucian Black's Jays. The only other Blue Jay in twin figures was usually high scoring Alvin Pierce, whose cold hand kept the game close. The junior forward scored just 11 points, carrying a 22-ppg average.

Leading scorer for Kennett was Charles Johnson, the 6-foot-2 forward who has been playing inspired ball the entire second half on the season and particularly in the regionals. Thursday night Johnson scored 18 points for coach Terry Turlington. Also scoring in double-figures were 5-foot-9 playmaking guard Jewell McKinney with 15 and Tim Goodman, who scored 13.

Missouri Signs Ill. Grid Stars

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Linebacker Mark Kirkpatrick and quarterback and linebacker William Culp of Wood River, Ill., have signed football letters of intent at the University of Missouri, Coach Al ONofrio announced today.

Lincoln Declared Champion

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association Wednesday declared Lincoln University conference basketball champion.

The MIAA conference committee ruled, however, that Lincoln, of Jefferson City, must forfeit a Jan. 8 game played against Southeast Missouri State.

Lincoln finished with a 12-0 record in conference play but its standing was called into question because of the ineligibility of one player.

Lincoln will represent the MIAA in the NCAA regional playoffs.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Three members from South Carolina's senior defensive secondary have been drafted by National Football League teams.

Kick return specialist Dick Harris of Point Pleasant Beach, N.J., was drafted by the New York Jets in the fifth round. Safety Bo Davies of Gettysburg, Pa., was picked by the New Orleans Saints in the fifth round.

NCAA Bids Accepted

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- South Carolina, Florida State, Villanova, Providence and Marshall accepted invitations to fill at- large berths today in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's University Division basketball tournament, an NCAA spokesman siad.

Nine of the 25 starting spots in the tournament go to at- large schools. Other schools were to be contacted by NCAA headquarters at 9:30 a.m., by the school's local time.

Three of the five teams from the Eastern time zone invited to the tournament - South Carolina 23-1, Florida State 23-4, Marshall 17-2 — are ranked in the nation's Top Ten.

BILL BRADLEY, erstwhile Rhodes scholar and now a New York Knick regular, says the outcome of the proposed merger between the American and National Basketball Associations will change the structure of professional sports.

Bradley Looks Into Politics

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Bradley of the New York Knickerbockers is still "investigating" the possibility of running for Missouri state treasurer.

The Crystal City, Mo., Rhodes scholar was in St. Louis Wednesday chatting with political leaders.

He talked with city Democratic Chairman Paul M. Berra, Revenue Collector John K. Travers and others.

Bradley, 28, said there was nothing to reports that he might be thinking of running for Congress in the state's new 10th District.

"My interest has been, and continues to be, in the treasurer's race," he said.

Bradley has until April 25, the filing deadline for the August primary, to make up his mind.

Bradley, now in his fifth year with the Knicks, was given a $60,000 bonus to sign. If he runs and wins the $20,000- a- year treasurer's post, he said, it will be "impossible" for him to continue playing basketball.

Where Is Richie?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Richie Allen by any other name is just as tough to locate as the original was.

Allen, who has expressed a desire to be called Dick this season, either is or is not a holdout for the Chicago White Sox. General Manager Stu Holcomb isn't exactly sure.

This much Holcomb and the White Sox know. They did not have a contract with Allen's signature on it as they prepared for today's baseball exhibition opener against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Sarasota, Fla., and, as a matter of fact, they did not have Allen either.

"I don't know where Allen is at the moment," said Holcomb Tuesday. "We're waiting until he comes to us. It's been the history of the man that he generally reports late for spring training."

And, Allen's ex-employers in Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles might add, he's occasionally late for other incidentals like regular season games.

The problem does not seem to be financial. Holcomb has a verbal commitment from Allen's Philadelphia agent for a 1972 contract. The numbers are reported to be $120,000.

But a commitment is not a contract and a contract Holcomb does not have. "I imagine," said the Sox general manager, "he'll come to us when he gets ready."

He was not ready for today's opener, one of three exhibitions scheduled. The others had the New York Yankees playing the Texas Rangers at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the San Diego Padres playing the Mexico City Reds at Mexico City.

The absent Allen had some star company missing from other spring training camps. Joe Torre, who had been in St. Petersburg, negotiating with St. Louis, left town to fly to New Hampshire for some campaigning in the presidential primary there. And Vida Blue's attorney, Robert J. Gerst of Los Angeles, was keeping the pitching proddgy out of Oakland owner Charles O. Finley's reach.

Torre, who made about $100,000 last year, is said to be shooting for $150,000—something over the 5.5 wage increase ceiling approved by President Nixon. Nevertheless, Torre is campaigning for the president while the Cards campaign for economic reason on the part of the National League's Most Valuable Player.

Blue, who made $14,750 toiling for the A's last year and was shooting for $92,000 this time around, is still at home in Mansfield, La., waiting for Finley to up his $50,000 offer. Finley said that Vida's attorney, Gerst, had turned down a proposal that the three talk contract at the A's Mesa, Ariz., training base.

Big Red Hire Black Assistant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have hired Bill "Thunder" Thornton, a former Nebraska and Big Red running back, as their first black assistant.

"I was looking first of all for a good coach," head coach Bob Hollway said Thursday following the appointment. "If he happened to be black, that was a plus."

Thornton, plagued through a five-season National Football League career by knee trouble, has been an assistant to Nebraska's Bob Devaney the past three seasons, coaching the backfield and defensive ends.

"I feel that Bill will be an asset to our staff," Hollway said. "He has had training with an excellent head coach and staff and has done a fine job."

Thornton, 31, was a two-time all-Big Eight Conference selection as a Nebraska fullback- linebacker and was chosen in the fifth round of the 1963 NFL draft by the Cardinals.

"It's a great opportunity with a good football team, and I'm looking forward to it," Thornton said in Lincoln, Neb. Referring to the job as "the chance of a lifetime," he added, "it's great to be back in the NFL."

Mizzou In Key Saturday Battle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference basketball race dives headlong into the showdown stage Saturday.

League-leading Kansas State, with its 9-2 record, is at home against Colorado, 3-8, in a regionally televised afternoon game. Missouri, 8-3, dropped to second last week by a loss to Kansas, goes on the road for a night scrap at Nebraska, 7-4.

Only Kansas State and Missouri, ranked 19th nationally, figure to have much chance at the title but defending champion Kansas, 7-5, hopes to remain in the running for second in a game Saturday night at Oklahoma State, 1-11.

Oklahoma, 7-4, plays Iowa State, 4-8, at Norman, Okla., in tonight's only action and, like Nebraska, still has a mathematical chance of taking the crown. Both the Sooners and the Cyclones are idle Saturday.

Saturday's big game, of course, is the Missouri-Nebraska clash. If the second place Tigers beat the Cornhuskers, Missouri, assuming Kansas State will conquer Colorado, will have an opportunity to tie to tie the Wildcats for the lead Tuesday night when the two teams collide at Columbia, Mo.

Missouri has beaten Nebraska twice this season, 76-64 in the Big Eight preseason tournament and 80-65 at Columbia in their first league meeting.

Still, a Missouri club hasn't been able to beat the Cornhuskers at Lincoln, Neb., since Norm Stewart became coach of the Tigers. Stewart is in his fifth season.

Both the Tigers and Cornhuskers are smarting from defeats. Missouri was chilled by the Jayhawks when Bud Stallworth poked in his recordmaking 50 points, and Nebraska bowed last Saturday night to Colorado.

During the week, Stewart has concentrated on defense, a factor he says was responsible for the Tigers' defeat by Kansas.

"We scored 80 points and still lost control of the game's tempo," explains Stewart. "We did a very poor iob defensively."

Ron Jaynes

By the time you open to this page and begin reading I hope to have arrived in the town of the Tigers, where Class M state Tournament basketball action begins at 7 p.m. and the Richland Rebels seek their schools first state title.

I left early this morning and will return a story for Saturday's paper as well as make quarter by quarter reports back for telenews tonight and Saturday.

My able bodied assistant, Bill Harrison, has joined the Advance Hornets in their state tournament playoffs at Rolla and will make the same reports as I for the paper and telenews.

For you fans who do not get a chance to go ....you can read about all the happenings at both sites in Saturday's and Monday's issues of the paper with full picture coverage of the celebrated events.

Southeast Missouri has its best chance to claiming both titles for the first time in the history of the 45 year old tournament....So include the Rebs and Hornets in your prayers and back them all the way...we will.

Basketball fans from the district have their choice of tournaments to attend so get on the road and make one of the games....The players will appreciate your backing.

Things are looking good for the SEMO entires in the state tournament...In fact so good that I'll stick my neck out and claim both Advance and Richland as state champs....

Matthews was the last SEMO team to win a state title....that coming in 1968....It about time for another championship...or better yet a pair of championships....

Advance and Richland go into today's semifinals of the Missouri State high school activities association basketball tournament favored to capture their respective class crowns.

Carroll Cookson's Advance Hornets took the tag as the team to beat for the convet class S crown when they knocked off the state's top rated Wright City Wildcats in Wednesday's quarterfinals.

Richland's talented Rebels was taged as the Class M unit to beat for the crown when it made rather easy work of St. Louis Prep South in a Wednesday quarterfinal.

Both Southeast Missouri teams hail from Stoddard county and battled neck and neck all season for the league crown with the Rebs posting a narrow one point verdict for the title.

The traditional fast break, overpowering offense and rebounding talent that recent SEMO state tournament teams, have been noted for are big pluses for both units.

Richland, which owns the best record of the four class M state tournament finalest, will be shooting for its 31st victory of the season when they tangle with Kansas City St. Pius at 8:30 tonight.

Coach Larry Joplin's Rebels only loss came to Stoddard county neighboring rival Dexter Bearcats late in the season.

Cards Make Last Offer

ST. Petersburg, Fla. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals General Manager Bing Devine says six salary holdouts have, in effect, received their last offer.

Devine, who arrived in the training camp Thursday, said the club may order the holdouts to camp under baseball's renewal clause. This was done two years ago when Richie Allen and Steve Carlton were holdouts.

Among the six Cards not yet signed is Joe Torre, third baseman who was voted the National League's most valuable player last year.

Torre said he was "sorry that that's the limit of the pay raise." He said he and the management were "a long way apart," Torre is believed to be asking for $150,000 a year.

Morrisville Leads Class 'S' Field

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Morrisvilleville, No. 4 in its division in the state last year, leads the way into the Missouri Class S High School Basketball Tournament at the University of Missouri-Rolla tonight.

Morrisville, with 28 wins and 3 losses, takes on Northeast Nodaway, with a 28-1 record, at 8:30 p.m. North Harrison and Advance will meet in a preliminary game at 7 p.m.

Morrisville, which lost 71-63 to Cairo in the third-place tournament game last season, moved up this year through the Greenfield regional tournament.

In state playoff action, Morrisville defeated SpringfieldGreenwood, 61-51, and Urbana Skyline, 44-38.

Northeast Nodaway of Ravenwood moved up in the Maryville regional and downed Stewartsville, 49-46, and Miami, 5045 in state action.

North Harrison of Eagleville has a 30-1 record and was winner of the Eagleville regional. It scored playoff victories of 6260 over Cairo and 86-73 over New Franklin.

Advance won the Matthews regional and defeated Myrtle Couch, 94-66, and Wright City, 84-78 in playoffs.

Buck Worth Bucks

Salisbury — It may have looked like a small white-tailed buck deer to Max Mull of here, but it turned out to be a blind bogey worth a $500 hunting trip to Colorado.

Mull, who works for the Soil Conservation service, and hunting buddy Paul Jeffries, field service agent for the Department of Conservation, were bowhunting together in the 1971 season near Swan Lake Federal Refuge.

Mull, a member of the National Field Archery Assn., downed a 116-pound buck. He recalled that Roy Hoff, editor of the NFAA magazine "Archery", annually offers a "blind bogey" contest -- the first archer who submits a deer closest to the weight of the deer Hoff himself gets will win a hunting trip with Hoff worth $500.

It turned out that Mull's deer was identically the same weight as Hoff's and the two will open the season next autumn near Grand Junction, Colo., with Hoff picking up the tab.

There were a couple of oddities about Mull's hunt -- one was that this was the second straight year a Missouri deer had won the nationally - conducted blind bogey contest (a deer taken in the annual Knob Noster State Park bohunt by a Kansas City, Kansas, archer was the 1970 winner) and the second was that Mull's deer had a collar.

Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Charlie:

I read with great interest your comments concerning Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company and free enterprise in this country. I wholeheartedly agree with you on the importance of keeping this freedom intact.

I would like, also, to comment on another one of our freedoms, the freedom of speech and opinion, which Jeanne Burke Logan of Charleston, Missouri, exercised in her letter to your paper printed in the February 24 issue. She commented that a source of finding out the caliber of an insurance company is by contacting the Missouri Division of Insurance. This is very true, and it is also true that it would be a good place to take her claim gripe, for if it is a legitimate gripe, certainly the Division of Insurance will see that fair action be taken. If it is a legitimate gripe, we want to be sure that it is treated fairly, also.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank both you, Charlie, for your article in the February 15 issue and Anne Wright of Bertrand, Missouri, for her very nice letter in defense of our Company.

Sincerely,
Jack B. Williams
Corporate Manager

The frequency of sound is determined by the number of times the vibrating waves undulate per second and is measured in cycles per second. The human ear is usually not sensitive to frequencies of less than 20 cycles per second, or more than 20,000 cycles per second, although this range varies among individuals, The World Almanac notes.

Q—How did the Rh factor in blood receive its name?

A—The scientists who found the factor in rhesus monkeys in 1940, named it "Rh" for the monkeys.

Danforth Follows Remap Idea

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth is going to go along with a federal three-judge panel's congressional redistricting plan for this year's elections, but will challenge the plan for the remainder of the decade.

Danforth contends in his appeal before the U.S. Supreme Court that the panel overstepped its powers when it took into account factors other than population in carving out 10 new districts.

It would serve no good purpose to press the appeal and further confuse the mixed up political situation this late in the election year, he said.

But he pledged to challenge the court's plan for future elections on the grounds that redistricting is primarily a legislative function.

The special panel acted when the legislature failed to come up with a plan of its own that would meet the U.S. Supreme Court's demand for districts nearly equal in population to satisfy the one man-one vote principle.

It is a problem which has been nagging almost every session of the General Assembly since 1961.

What's The Law
Heavy Gal Loses Case

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

A railroad company spruced up one of its station platforms with a fresh coat of paint and a fresh layer of asphalt. But it was the appearance of statuesque Stella, however, several days later, that really gave the railroad station class. Standing six feet tall and weighing over 200 pounds, with each ounce of her being sexily placed, she produced more whistles than the oncoming train. Unfortunately, the train came and went without her. While she had been waiting patiently on the platform, one of her high, spiked heels slowly sank into the asphalt causing her to lose her footing and topple over.

Crashing to the station platform, statuesque Stella sued the railroad company for her downfall.

"Railroad platforms must be maintained in a safe condition for passengers," complained the high altitude beauty in court. "And, obviously, if my heel could sink into asphalt, it wasn't safe."

"There was nothing wrong with the platform," responded the attorney for the railroad company. "The problem was with Stella. She was too much of a good thing. Not even the platform could resist her, but that doesn't mean that it wasn't safe for the ordinary person."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the high-altitude beauty to collect from the railroad company for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that considering Stella's weight and the size of her heel, she would have exerted a downward pressure equal to 1,400 pounds per square inch. Under the circumstances, he therefore concluded, Stella was not aproper measure to determine whether or not the material used to mend the platform was adequate to make it safe of unsafe for passengers. (Based upon a 1966 St. Louis Missouri, Court of Appeals Decision.)

A BLIND MAN FROM BIRTH

It was believed that sickness was a result of sin, a sign of God's displeasure. Quite naturally the disciples asked Jesus, "Who sinned, this man or his parents?" when they came upon an adult who had been blind since birth. Christ did not accept the sickness-sin doctrine. When God is present, sickness and infirmity are removed. Holiness is health. So Jesus said, neither parties sinned. This is an opportunity to reveal God's power in the cure. And so he did.

The reaction to the healing of this blind man occupies a long and heated argument in the Gospel of John. The religious authorities could not accept the power of Christ or believe His miracles. They challenged the man's cure. The prophet Isaiah had said that the Messiah would bring good news to the poor, proclaim release for prisoners and "recovery of sight for the blind." This healing miracle was a medical educational event of this truth—yet many could not believe it. Such is the nature of man's freedom.

Antiwar Conspiracy Trial

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A 53-year-old librarian was jailed for contempt of court today when she refused to testify at the federal conspiracy trial of antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six others accused of plotting to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger.

Mrs. Zoia Horn of Turlock, Calif., who called the trial "a black charade" was ordered jailed by U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman until the trial ends "or until you purge yourself."

The reluctant witness was the chief reference librarian at Bucknell University in nearby Lewisburg in 1970 when the government alleges the conspiracy was hatched.

Berrigan was imprisoned at the Lewisburg penitentiary at the time, serving a six-year sentence for destroying draft files in Maryland.

The government says Mrs. Horn was acquainted with Berrigan and also entertained some of the other defendants and FBI informer Boyd F. Douglas Jr. in her home.

Douglas testified Thursday that a telephone call from a nun, one of the defendants, alerted him to "a very hot letter" that allegedly sketched the Kissinger kidnap plot.

That letter wasn't read to the jury immediately as opposing lawyers tangled over whether Eqbal Ahmad, another defendant, ever telephoned Douglas to disclose its contents.

Thomas Files For Governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jim Thomas, native of Joplin and now a resident of Branson, Mo., filed today for the Democratic nomination for governor, a field that is already crowded.

His entry brought to nine the number of Democrats seeking the state's highest political office.

Thomas, who will be 47 next month, was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for congressman in the heavily Republican 7th District of Southwest Missouri in 1962 and 1964. He has been active in Democratic affairs since 1948 when he worked for the re-election of President Harry S. Truman.

He said if elected he would appoint a citizens cabinet representing all walks of life to help him establish government program priorities.

On ecology, he said "we are dying a little extra each day," and promised to make pollution control a top priority of his administration.

Thomas attended Joplin public schools, Missouri Southern College, Joplin and Rockhurst College in Kansas City.

Other Democrats in the race, in the order which they filed: William S. Morris; John Noel, St. Louis; Jackson County Prosecutor Joseph P. Teasdale of Kansas City; LeRoy Schantz of Springfield and Neosho, former director of employment security here; State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell of Hillsboro, and Robert D. Newbury of O'Fallon.

Only two Republicans have filed but a third has announced. State Rep. R. J. "Bus" King of Clayton and Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis have filed and State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond has announced.

Completing the field is Paul J. Leonard of Jackson who filed as a nonpartisan candidate.

Storm Warning System Planned By Commission

Six-county area mayors, law enforcement officials, civil defense personnel, radio station owners and managers, recently attended a special meeting at the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission's office in Malden to develop an early storm warning system for the Bootheel.

The 38 officials attending agreed that a central reporting system could be established, but the most difficult problem would be finding an effective alerting system. The problem of building an alerting process to inform citizens of an approaching tornado during the late night hours and early morning still plagues the concerned citizens.

Bill Wellborn, Research Analyst of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, said, "Each year tornados pose the greatest potential danger to life and property in the Bootheel. To meet this perennial threat, we (the planning commission) invited H. W. Waldheuser, Meterologist with the U. S. National Weather Service, Lambert Field, St. Louis, to assist us in developing a storm warming system."

Waldheuser expressed the desires of the U. S. National Weather Service, to assist in alert storm plagued Bootheel citizens of approaching tornados.

Wellborn suggested in addition to a network of storm spotters, a "hot line" should be opened direct from the U. S. National Weather Service headquarters in St. Louis to Malden from which weather warning information could be disseminated to Bootheel sheriff's departments and civil defense directors. Once in the hands of the County Civil Defense Directors, this warning would be passed on to schools, hospitals, etc. by telephone, and to the general public by means of sirens. Wellborn went on to say, this hot line could prove particularly valuable after midnight when most people have their radios and televisions turned off.

Dick Wiethan, owner of Radio Station KTCB in Malden said, "Most radio stations in the Bootheel could return to the air and broadcast warnings after normal sign off if a severe weather bulletin is issued thru this hot line.

Wellborn concluded by saying, coordination between Bootheel cities and counties will be the key to the successful operation of an early storm warning system and the planning commission is prepared to extend any effort necessary to effect such coordination.

Jobless Rate Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dipped in February, and workers' average earnings kept well ahead of the rise in living costs, the government reported today

The jobless rate declined from 5.9 to 5.7 per cent of the work force, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The bureau said today's rate was the lowest in 17 months— since the 5.5 per cent of October 1970.

It also said average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank and file workers—more than half the nation's employment total—rose 35 cents per week to $130.27 because of the rise in the length of the work week.

The bureau's report said this represented an earnings gain of $7.66 or 6.2 per cent over the past year. The 3.4 per cent rise in consumer prices over the same period left workers with a net wage gain of $3.24 per week.

The actual number of unemployed persons last month remained unchanged at 5.4 million, but after seasonal adjustment for the usual February rise in joblessness, the bureau figured it as a decline.

Total employment increased slightly from 79.1 million to 79.3 million, but was unchanged on a seasonally adjusted basis at 80.6 million, the report said.

A gain in service jobs was partly offset by a decline in construction work.

The length of the average work week rose 12 minutes to 37.2 hours. In manufacturing, the work week increased 24 minutes to 40.4 hours, highest in more than two years, the bureau said.

Average hourly earnings remained unchanged at $3.54, it said.

Unemployment among men dipped from 4.2 to 4 per cent for a total of 2.4 million. The jobless rate for women showed the biggest decline, from 5.5 to 5 per cent with a total of 1.5 million. The rate for teen-agers rose from 17.8 to 18.8 per cent with a total of 1.3 million, the report said.

The jobless rate for white workers dipped from 5.3 to 5.1 per cent with a total of 4.3 million. The rate for other races— mostly blacks—was down slightly from 10.6 to 10.5 per cent with a total of a little over one million, the bureau said.

The rate for white-collar workers declined from 3.6 to 3.3 per cent. This was mainly a result of a reduction in joblessness among professional and technical workers, whose rate moved down from 3.1 to 2.5 per cent, its lowest level in eight months, the bureau said.

The average duration of joblessness increased to 12.5 weeks in February. It had fluctuated between 11.4 and 12.6 weeks over the past 10 months, said the bureau.

Joblessness among Vietnam era veterans declined from 8.5 to 7.4 per cent for the lowest rate in more than a year.

"About 4.1 million veterans were in the labor force in February; 3.7 milion held jobs and 400,000 were unemployed," the bureau said.

The federal government has been conducting a special program to find jobs for returning veterans.

Rescue Workers Save 6-Year Old

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — A rescue worker carried 6-yearold Anthony Bernardino to safety early today after the boy had spent almost seven hours tightly wedged 27 feet down a narrow hole.

The dirt-caked and pale youngster said, "Hi, Mommy, hi Daddy," to his parents before being taken by helicopter to a medical center for observation. He was reported in good condition.

"How's Jimmy?" the boy added in reference to his 8year-old brother. The two were flying kites Thursday afternoon when Anthony tumbled into the hole on a road construction project in this Los Angeles suburb.

Rescue workers, newsmen and hundreds of onlookers cheered when the tiny boy was carried from a rescue shaft at 12:08 a.m.

"I never thought they wouldn't get him," his mother Sandra said. "I just wondered how long it was going to take."

At times rescue workers could hear the boy crying, then laughing hysterically.

Jim Bernardino, the boy's father, said, "I'm really happy. They (rescue workers) really did a good job."

Hospital attendants said the youngster apparently suffered no serious injuries.

As workers sank a 30-foot rescue shaft adjacent to the hole in which Anthony was trapped, Dr. William Baker of El Monte talked with him through a stethescope extended on plastic tubing. Oxygen was pumped to within inches of Anthony's face.

Pioneer 10

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Pioneer 10, the fastest spacecraft ever launched, sped beyond the moon in record time today and streaked on toward the planet Jupiter and an eternal journey through the stars.

Flying with the spacecraft was a message for alien civilizations which might exist beyond our solar system.

Just 11 hours and 40 minutes after launch, Pioneer 10 zipped across the orbital path of the moon, which was tens of thousands of miles away from the spacecraft at the time. Apollo astronauts require three days to cover the same quarter-million-mile distance.

All systems on the payload were operating, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported.

Will Schools Get All Their Aid?

State Aid Drama

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The annual little drama over state school aid is being played out again in the 1972 legislative session.

At stake is whether the public schools will get all the state aid the 1971 legislature voted they should have. The key bill to solve the problem is resting in the House Education Committee.

Already passed by the Senate, the bill would provide for a fourth distribution of school aid May 15 this year, and on a permanent basis from now on. A similar temporary bill expired at the end of 1971.

Unless the bill is passed, the old law providing for three distributions in September, December and March will continue in effect.

Money to pay for the March 15 allotment already has been transferred to the state school moneys fund by comptroller John C. Vaughn—about $79.9 million. That brought to 192.4 million the total transferred from general revenue since last July 1.

Still due the schools is about $68.7 million, and unless the bill for a fourth distribution is passed, the schools would have to do without that (and more) until next September's allocation.

Vaughn said he thought collections would be ample to cover the $68.7 million if he is allowed to use all collections right up to May 15 before transferring the money to the school fund. He said a slight technical change in the Senate bill will be necessary to accomplish this.

The change would eliminate the necessity for him to certify the final amount at the end of April and would let him continue to put money in the school fund up to mid-May.

If the change is not made, Vaughn said, the schools won't get all the money due them for this fiscal year.

Since legislators are extremely sensitive to problems involving school finances, little trouble is expected in getting the Senate bill changed to open the way for full payment.

Whether the legislature will provide for another $35 million a year increase in state school aid for the 1972-73 fiscal year will not be determined until the major appropriation bills are worked out in their final form next month.

The legislature committed itself to such an increase and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has recommended that the obligation be met.

Release Hope Not Much

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. prisoners of war in Hanoi have been quoted as saying they have little hope that President Nixon's eight-point peace plan and China trip will lead to their release.

Nor do they believe that Nixon's steps are likely to bring peace.

The statements were attributed to Navy Lt. Cmdr. David Wesley Hoffman of San Diego and Cmdr. Walter Eugene Wilber of Columbia Crossroads, Pa.

Dr. George Wald, a NobelPrize-winning biologist, said the officers expressed those views in a tape-recorded interview with him last Feb. 19 during his visit to Hanoi.

"Of course, a presidential visit to Peking doesn't look like it's any way to stop the war," Wilber said in the interview. "It looks like a spectacular move to increase his prestige for the American people, for the presidential election."

Wald asked Wilber if he knew of Nixon's latest peace proposal.

"Yes, I've heard about that," replied Wilber, a prisoner since 1968. "Here again the wording in the eight-point program doesn't look sincere to me. It looks like it misses the point— to end the war is not in there."

Hoffman, who was shot down last Dec. 30, said of the Nixon plan, "I don't have the full details of all the points. The proposal is on the surface pretty good, but when does this 'agreement' start and when does the withdrawal begin?"

Wald answered that Nixon's plan calls for withdrawal to be complete six months after an agreement is reached but he said that completing the agreement "could take years."

"I don't see how," injected Hoffman. "I'm sorry to interrupt—how could it take years because I frankly don't see how Mr. Nixon can be re-elected unless something is done ...."

To Wald's statement that agreement could take years, Wilber replied:

"And that's the part which from a prisoner's point looks depressing. However, we realize there is progress being made, that there is more pressure being put on through the Congress and various things."

Hoffman added, "I think the biggest thing that our attention is centered on is the political campaign that is coming up."

"Is the country going to be able to elect a President who can end this thing?" Hoffman asked. "It seems to us that it's perfectly obvious that we have to withdraw, to end this war, and that's the only way we're going to go home."

Dexter Child Hit Unavoidabley

DEXTER — A seven year old Dexter girl was seriously injured this morning when struck by a pick-up truck being driven by Ralph Buchannan.

The girl, Rita Faye Mitchell, a second grade student, was waiting for the school bus on the north side of Stoddard Street when she darted from behind a parked car. Buchannan was driving west and according to the bus driver, Earl Slaughter, the accident could not have been avoided.

She is in serious condition at the Dexter Memorial Hospital with multiple fractures of the left leg and left arm.

Buchannan, a local roofer, was not given a ticket. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sides.

Something For All

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A black civil rights activist says a group has been formed to push a Democratic national ticket that would offer something for everyone—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for president and black U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York for vice president.

The Rev. James Bevel, longtime aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said Thursday the proposed ticket could satisfy both blacks and whites, as well as the women's liberation movement.

Bevel said slightly more than 100 persons, mostly Southern students, both black and white, now make up the organization that will promote the WallaceChisholm ticket.

They are preparing to mount a national drive and take the proposal to the floor of the Democratic National Convention, he said.

Mrs. Chisholm could not be reached for comment.

A spokesman for Wallace said he had not heard of the proposal and "just don't have any reaction at all."

POLITICIANS TO BLAME IN NORTHERN IRELAND

Sometimes the background to a story is not made clear in the news reports. This is especially so regarding foreign events. Take for example the latest trouble in Northern Ireland.

The impression is left that Irish Protestants and Irish Catholics simply cannot get along. Yet in southern Ireland there has been no conflict for 50 years. The difference is primarily economic discrimination in the North, a pattern that has existed there for centuries and was embodied in the system when Northern Ireland was separated from the South in 1921.

The discrimination is for political purposes, but religion is the instrument. Catholic voters are gerrymandered out of their voting rights. They are discriminated against in regard to housing, and seldom given a job unless there is a labor shortage in the area. The politicians have divided the people along these lines. This is the answer to the question: Why can't the Protestants and Catholics get along?

A BETTER BUSINESS INDICATOR

These days, just about anything serves as an "economic indicator."

For instance, despite high unemployment and business uncertainty, mortgage loan deliquencies at the nation's savings and loan associations "rose only slightly" during 1971, reports the United States Savings and Loan League.

Mortgage delinquencies continued to run at a rate of less than 1 per cent of all mortgages — .79 per cent in 1971 compared to .75 per cent during 1970.

Is this good? Not necessarily. During the bullish year of 1967, delinquencies ran .89 per cent.

As another possible "indicator," the rate of bankruptcy is on the rise again, reports Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. More than 200,000 bankruptcy petitions were filed in 1971, up 3.6 per cent from 1970.

Is this bad? Not necessarily. Bankruptcies rose steadily after World War II as consumer credit mushroomed, setting new records every year until they reached an all-time high in 1967. They declined somewhat thereafter and now are creeping up again.

O.K., try this for an "indicator." The outlook for executive employment is "extremely favorable," says Marc Savage, president of Executive Development Corp., and executive search firm.

About 20 months ago, presaging the recent recession, the organization recorded a sharp increase in unsolicited resumes from executives looking for jobs — about 50 per cent above usual levels. These unsolicited resumes have dropped in the last two months and continue to dwindle. At the same time, there has been a jump in requests from companies looking for executives.

This reflects an increasingly healthier economic climate overall, says Savage, who also notes that an analysis of resumes indicates that executives in the hard-hit aerospace industry have largely been relocated.

Now this does sound good. We think.

WALL STREET WHISPERS

"When they say that the most important benefits are the ones you don't know about, just try to figure out the ones that belong to the United Mine Workers. For some 20 years, the UMW Pension and Welfare Fund assets have been sitting in a checking account with the National Bank of Washington, doing nothing, not collecting a cent in interest. Nobody knows why or how, and nobody ain't telling ... not even the actual amount, which has been estimated at about $50 million dollars. Now that the courts have ordered the pension fund money withdrawn and put elsewhere where it can earn a dollar, the big question is what will National Bank of Washington do about the $11.5 million dollars that the court insist must be added to the pot to make up for what the money would have earned if invested for all those years. The odds are that there will be no appeal since it might take several years and meanwhile it would cost the bank some $600,000 or $700,000 each year no matter who finally won.

"There is no question that True Davis (formerly from St. Joseph, Mo.), the former U. S. ambassador and now president of the bank, is as clean as a whistle since he came on the scene. True is well-known on the Washington social circuit, which doesn't hurt any when you're out giving the other big banks a run for top spot." -- Reprinted from Finance magazine.

EXPLORATION BY ROBOT

Navy engineers in San Diego have put together an aquatic robot with a remotely controlled television camera. In the words of a certain commercial slogan, it's the next best thing to begin there.

The camera is guided by the head motions of an abovewater operator. Every time he turns or tilts his head, the underwater camera does the same, transmitting an image to a television screen held in front of the operator by a head harness. The effect is startling similar to direct vision, reports New York Times science writer Walter Sullivan.

Other systems under deveopment may eventually provide three-dimensional vision, hearing and even a rudimentary sense of a feeling by means of manipulators electronically controlled by movements of the operator's hand and fingers.

The engineers look to a time when a man, sitting in a warm, dry, safe environment, can "swim" to virtually unlimited depths, turning his head to look here and there as he performs such tasks as manipulating valves on oil rigs, collecting seabottom samples or opening hatches on sunken vessels.

Such "teleoperators" would be even more effective than an actual man on the scene, who would be hampered by cumbersome life-support equipment and the emotional stresses of a hazardous situation.

While the Navy is interested only in terrestrial applications, it is possible that someday astronauts, sitting in shirtsleeves in orbiting command modules, will remotely explore such hostile planets as Jupiter or Venus through sensory hookups with robots on the surface.

TECHNOLOGY: WILL IT MAKE JOBS OR TAKE THEM AWAY?

"How long will it be before this circuit learns your job?" That's how the poster went. And it scared a lot of people. Rightly so. But there's a bright side to the "technological revolution" that most people forget.

Modern technology has actually created more jobs than it has taken away. People with a minimum of technical education can expect to earn as much, and pull as much weight, as the average college graduate when he starts out. In fact, the main problem today is finding people to fill technician's jobs. One out of three of them go begging. Yet well over 1,000,000 more will open in the next few years.

Quite a problem for our businessmen. Quite an opportunity for our children.

Here's what you can do about it.

If you're a parent, send for a new booklet called "25 technical careers you can learn in two years or less." It's written by the U. S. Office of Education, in cooperation with The Conference Board. It describes technical careers in almost every branch of science. And tells about the new, intensive training programs that can prepare your children for those careers. To get a copy, free, write:

If you're a businessman, get behind the campaign to tell young people about technician's careers. For poster and booklets, write: Technicians, P. B. Box 313, Radio City Station, New York, New York 10019.

Questions are often asked about the difference between mayonnaise and salad dressing. Mayonnaise is a stable emulsion of oil droplets in water; it doesn't separate because it is stablized with egg yolk, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture home economists. Salad dressing contains less oil and a cooked starch paste which substitutes for part of the egg.

REDWOOD SUCCESS STORY

Conservation and environment are two words that become so charged with emotionalism that reasoned discussion of either the environment or conservation is difficult. One of the most spectacular examples of conservation confusion has had to do with the California Coast Redwoods. Mr. Kramer Adams, writing in his revealing book "The Redwoods", says, "To most Americans, conservation of the redwoods has come to mean consignment of forested areas to park or wilderness status, untouched, inviolate. This is a worthwhile and essential effort. ..but it is better described by the term 'preservation'. It is only one of the elements contributing to the objectives of conservation, which since Teddy Roosevelt's day has been universally defined as wise use of our natural resources." Mr. Adams describes how intensive forest management as practiced by present-day timber companies has had the same effect so far as increased wood production goes as making our commercial forests of redwoods twice as large.

The nation's major timber companies have contributed vast tracts of redwoods to national parks. At the same time, these companies provide a livelihood for some 20,000 workers. Forty redwood products companies, since 1960, have spent more than $100 million in new plants, equipment and improvements. And, in the next 10 years, capital investments in new mills for producing redwood plywood, pulp, paper and particle board will add up to another $100 million.

Obviously, as Mr. Kramer Adams points out, the redwoods are far from a disappearing species. His book is must reading for anyone who sincerely wishes to learn the truth about conservation and use with regard to one of the nation's most valuable, renewable resources... the redwoods. In fact, its message applies to all forest lands.

SCHOLASTIC GREENBACKS

Education, like everything else, may be in for revamping in the months and years ahead--if a "Black Paper", recently published by a group of British educationists, psychologists, publicists and parents, relative to the status of education in England, may be taken as a general criteria. It charges that the standard of education in British schools is lower than it was in 1914. Blame for this state of affairs is laid, by inference, at the door of the U. S. educational system, which has proceeded on the theory that children learn better when discipline in the schools is relaxed. In Britain, this "progressive" educational philosophy seems to have had discouraging results. The average attainments in reading, spelling, and mechanical and problem arithmetic are now appreciably lower than they were 55 years ago. Reading standards are poor, not only among school children but also among teachers. As a result of progressive education, the "Black Paper" reports that up to 25 per cent of college-level students are semiliterate. Many British industrialists say, to their dismay, that even some university graduates are unable to spell properly when they take jobs.

A diploma needs the backing of an educated man. Without that, it is like printing press money--non-negotiable. Institutions of higher learning that issue scholastic greenbacks instead of the time-honored sheepskins must sooner or later face a day of reckoning.

From a speech by Milton Unton, President of Belloit College and reprinted fromthe Jefferson City Post-Tribune.

"I've about reached the end of my tolerance for our society's one-sided sympathy for the misfit, the ne'er-do-well, the drug addict, the chronic criminal, the loser-in-general, the underdog. I feel it's time for someone to stand up and say: "I'm for the upperdog!"

"I'm for the one who sets out to do something and does it; the one who recognizes the problems at hand and endeavors to deal with them; the one who isn't blaming someone else's failings, who doesn't consider it 'square' to wonder what more he can do instead of why he shouldn't be doing what he's doing.

"Whether 'privileged' or 'underprivileged', each of us should be judged bywhat he does with what he inherits—not merely excused as a 'victim of his environment.'

"The quality of any society is directly related to the quality of the individual excellence and achievement are not only respected but encouraged.

Building a better society will only be done by those who take seriously their responsibility for making the most of their native ability, for getting the job done.

VICTORY IS FINAL

An old enemy has finally been flushed out, making the surrender of the Japanese Imperial Army complete. At least it is assumed that he is the last living survivor of the once mighty force that held the United States and her allies at bay during most of World War II. The bearded Sgt. Shoichi Yokoi, apprehended at the cave on Guam which has been his home for 28 years, said he would like to go back to Japan and then climb a mountain where he could meditate. He had been driven to his hiding place by United States forces in 1944 and had not surrendered because he was afraid he would be executed.

Sgt. Yokoi, now 56, must have found the world he reentered a strange one indeed. To him television was unbelievable and so was the flight time of his trip back home to Japan in a jet plane---three hours. When Sgt. Yokoi ends his meditation and has time to catch up on many years of developments, he will find that a lot has changed. His native Japan, which was taking a terrific beating at the time he fled to his cave, has become a highly respected and democratic country, thanks to the genius and benevolence of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his staff who performed a miracle in setting the defeated country on a course to great achievement. He will find that Russia, which obtained with intrigue and subtrefuge unwarranted title to Japanese possessions, has emerged as a superpower with the hydrogen bombbut remains the same old aggressor. He will learn that the Chinese communists, with the aid of some top U. S. officials, drove the fine leaders of the Republic of China into the sea and onto the island of Formosa. But he will find new hope in Japan, just as the entire world has hope in her. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Otto Preminger, a man whose own temperament is as unpredictable as nitroglycerin, believes that violence on the screen is more dangerous to youthful minds than sex scenes.

"I let my own children go to any picture and read any magazine," he said. "And I discuss things with them.

"I think the only thing dangerous to young children is to show them acts of violence. I don't think sex is too harmful or should be made too mysterious.

"But acts of violence lead to war."

The producer conceded, however, that his viewpoint was debatable.

"Some psychiatrists think you get violence out of your system by being shown scenes of it," he said.

Preminger has produced, directed or acted in 39 pictures since 1942, and his bald pate and pendulous lip have become Hollywood landmarks. His latest film, "Such Good Friends," is rated by critics as one of his better ones.

It is said that Otto can reduce even the most egocentric actor or actress to a quivering mass of outraged jelly quicker than any other producer in the industry. But he feels that this picture of him as a studio autocrat is overdrawn. He is really, he says, a mild man.

The producer, trained to be a lawyer in his native Vienna, likes controversy and sophisticated living. Asked to say what he thought life was in one word, he replied, "Enjoyment."

He put his philosophy this way:

"The greatest strength a person can achieve is to live by his own standards and convictions. I could not work if I worried about what others think or say about me."

Work is the keystone of his life and his only hobby. He and his staff filter 50 or more scripts a month seeking a story he feels he can turn into a notable film.

These are the things Preminger likes:

"Learning from young people—music, vodka and good red wine—modern paintings—the smells and flowers of spring—black and white furniture—beautiful women—foods I can't eat because they make me fat—the privacy and excitement of New York City—the smell of leather—traveling— and active, easygoing people who get things done."

These are what Otto dislikes:

"The feel of silk, it makes me nervous—violence, wars—noise—ugly fat women, although I feel sorry for them—the crime wave in New York streets—the lack of control that leads to wars—people who are liars or submissive. I prefer outspoken people even though I disagree with them."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: The Justice Department and International Telephone and Telegraph are now trying to lie their way out of a scandal over the suspicious, sudden settlement of a landmark anti-trust suit against ITT.

In earlier columns, we disclosed a remarkable ITT memo indicating the Justice Department granted the favorable settlement in exchange for cash support of the upcoming Republican convention in San Diego.

The author of the memo, ITT lobbyist Dita Beard, told us she arranged the settlement herself in a private conversation with Attorney General John Mitchell at a Kentucky dinner party.

Mitchell refused to talk to us. A spokesman, John Hushen, urged us to withhold our story until he could "get our ducks in a row." He then waited three days before calling us back with a terse statement from Mitchell.

The statement says the Attorney General "was not involved in any way with the Republican National Committee convention negotiations and had no knowledge of anyone from the committee or elsewhere dealing with International Telephone and Telegraph."

This is false. In mid-May last year, California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and an aide, Edgar Gillenwaters, met with Mitchell in his Washington office to discuss efforts to hold the convention in San Diego.

MITCHELL MISLEADS

We could not reach Reinecke, but Gillenwaters told us he and Reinecke personally informed Mitchell that ITT had offered to put up as much as $400,000 to support a GOP convention in San Diego.

"He liked the idea of (having the convention in) San Diego." Gillenwaters said of Mitchell. "He didn't need any persuading. He said, "If you can do it, more power to you."

ITT also issued a statement on the matter which insisted that only its lawyers were authorized to deal with the Justice Department on the anti-trust cases. "Neither Mrs. Beard nor anyone else except legal counsel was authorized to carry on such negotiations," the statement said.

This is also false. Felix Rohatyn, an investment banker and director of ITT, told us he held a series of about a half-dozen secret meetings during the merger negotiations with Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst. Rohatyn said he was specifically authorized to "Make the case on the economic side" by ITT President Harold S. Geneen.

Rohatyn's acknowledgement also puts the lie to an earlier statement by Kleindienst, who has now been named to replace Mitchell as Attorney General. On December 13, Kleindienst wrote to Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien to deny that high-level political pressure had been exerted on the Justice Department's anti-trust staff in the ITT case.

"The settlement between the Department of Justice and ITT was handled and negotiated exclusively by Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren (then head of the anti-trust division)," the Kleindienst letter said.

Obviously, if Kleindienst was holding secret talks with Rohatyn on the case, it could not have been "handled and negotiated exclusively" by McLaren and ITT's lawyers.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Revolt Against Meany? -- Labor Chief Needled in Secret Session; Agrees to Help Launch Vast National Unionizing Drive.

By Victor Riesel -- Washington -- This is a major story in a minor key. It pivots on two flurries of history. One affected George Meany's heart last Thanksgiving Day. The other ever so unnoticeably affected his absolute command of America's powerful labor movement last St. Valentine's Day. The second flurry came behind the traditionally tightly closed doors of labor's Executive Council mid-winter session, of course, in Bal Harbour, Fla.

In the words of one member of the high command: "There was a minor revolution. There was a major change in the decision-making dynamics of the AFL-CIO."

Since what affects the AFL-CIO's decision-making affects all of the U. S., -- politically, industrially, socially and internationally -- this "minor revolution" is a major development.

For the first time since Meany took the presidency of the AFL, and later the merged movement, he was challenged by one of his loyalists. In the supposed secrecy of labor's own guarded seaside position room, "Mr. Labor" was criticized, questioned and confronted on basic issues of consultation, on political expenditures, on "federation policy" on the Hill, and attacked for not unleashing a national unionization offensive -- organizing the unorganized.

This was not an attack on the power of the implacable cigar - and word-biting chief. The flurry came from the angered 57 year old Seafarers' leader, Paul Hall, who later told other union chiefs: "God damn it, I love the old man, but let's get the movement into organizing business again." But during the week-long high-command session Paul Hall, who is also chairman of the AFL-CIO's Standing Committee on Organization, and Meany got heated and some of love's labor was lost. The irked Seafarer was strongly backed by the "young militant" Jerry Wurf, president of the public employees, the AFL-CIO's swiftest growing union.

It all began after Meany recovered from his heart flurry, put in hard hours in the office, went up the Hill to lobby personally, sat through an entire day's session of the National Commission on Productivity -- and he and his public relations specialists decided to saturate the media. They had hit the news magazines' front pages. So now came the mass interviews with at least one magazine's editorial board, television appearances and an agreement to sit for one of Mike Wallace's "60 Minutes" productions.

During a magazine interview Feb. 21, Meany was asked, in effect, why the AFL-CIO did not have more of a percentage of America's workers unionized. He snapped at the U. S. News and World Report Editors, "I don't know. I don't care -- Why should we worry about organizing groups of people who do not appear to want to be organized?"

That is Meany's fashion. He never wastes words or glances. His retort in print looked tougher than he sounds. And when, during the AFL-CIO Executive Council session, his staff distributed copies of it as a public relations coup, Hall hit the fan.

The sailor turned to the plumber and said: "I was very distressed -- if you are quoted accurately." Hall knew well that it was accurate. Meany said it was. Meany explained and defended his words, Hall steamed in on him relentlessly, saying, in effect, that these words and picture captions could be used against the movement's organizing campaigns.

Hall was passing on some needles handed him the Friday previous to the council's Feb. 14 opening session. That Friday, Feb. 11, he had been visited by a group of powerful labor chiefs. They were part of the Organizing Committee of the movement's virtually unknown but important Industrial Union Department which was originally launched by the late Walter Reuther as the legions to carry him up the road to massive 1930s style organizing drives.

The visitors complained to Hall that the federation was losing members. One Electrical Brotherhood union leader reportedly said, "I have to win 100,000 new members a year just to stay even." They wanted Hall to unleash some old-fashioned campaigns and shake up the nation as well as the AFL-CIO.

It was said that the national AFL-CIO was "attriting" out the organizing field staff. And would Hall do something about it? He said he would. So he did. Not long after the high command had seen a Committee on Political Education (COPE)-produced film talking of the nation's social ills, Hall raised the issue of Meany's "Who Cares?" quote.

Finally, Meany cooled it by saying, okay, you're the chairman of the Organizing Committee, why don't you call a meeting? Let me know, I'll be there.

Paul Hall, who has a Metternich touch, now is planning one shortly in Washington. We'll know by the next big command session in May if the Bal Harbour flurries are just that, or a minor revolt or a major upheaval for labor and the nation. If Hall, at 57, leads the legions needed for an organizing drive to successful campaigns, he could someday lead labor's own high command.

Let Me Play A Movie Critic For Once in My Life

I went to the theater today and saw a movie, which I'll never forget as long as I live. This movie was a premiere preview for all the lady's in Sikeston to go see free of charge for the afternoon of Feb. 29, 1972.

When the movie first started, I thought it was going to be a boaring same old kind of story, that couldn't hold my interst. But after about the first ten or fifteen minutes passed, I was wishing this story would never end. Of course at the end of the story, you can see why the beginning had to be that way.

If you want to see a story of real true human life as it really is for male or female, then go see "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you want to see the most sacred love story that was ever put on a movie screen. Then "Long Ago Tomorrow" is for you.

If you want to take a look at your own life, and realize how well off you are in so many little ways, and how the littlest things on this earth, could mean so much to some people. Little things that we all just take for granted, You must see "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you feel like really laughing, and feeling real happiness. There is a lot of little humors in this movie, and to really sit in a theater and actually feel real happiness. This you'll get in the movie "Long Ago Tomorrow."

If you go to movies and never shed a tear. You had better take a hankie along or better yet, take a box of tissues with you. Because I'm sure there will be a few males that will have the need for them too, as this story really gets to your heart, female or male.

"Long Ago Tomorrow," starring Malcolm McDowell, has to be one of the best true to life love storys, ever put on a movie screen in the history of the movie makers. Malcolm McDowell will have to be rewarded for such great acting.

I just wish I could have some way to get every adult minded person to go see this movie, be it male or female, black or white, Catholic or Protestant. You must see this movie from the very beginning, to the very end, to really feel that you've never seen or felt such happiness or sadness, humor or sorrow.

Their are people of all kinds of beliefs in this world. Some don't believe in any curse words or drinking liquor. Their is one very small part with drinking liquor, and very few minor curse words in this movie, and if you miss this story because of someone getting a little drunk or a few words, then you've done an injustice to yourself, as the story will make up for these few words or booze.

Some people don't believe in sex movies. There is sex in this story, but the most beautiful human life sex, that we have all lived at one time or other in our life. Not naked bodys jumping all over the screen in this movie, but real beauty of sex in life as God intended.

This movie should be seen by all the females who gripe about having to work, having to cook meals, having to run their children here and there, always tired because so much has to be done. When you see this movie, you'll finally realize just how wonderful these things become in our life.

This movie should be seen by all the males, who gripe because they have to hold a job everyday, and have to accept the responsibility of a family, and never seem to find the time to just sit around and enjoy doing nothing. You'll finally realize just how wonderful these things in our daily life are.

All young adults male and female, will fully enjoy and understand this story from beginning to end, this I know. And if all of us middle age adults and over, would just take time out to go see this movie. I'm sure they would all feel like something has been added to their life. And most people in their own special way, will say, "Thank You Dear God," for our normal days and ways of life today.

All this you will get from this movie "Long Ago Tomorrow." Plus I'm sure many, many more little things I didn't write about. Please do yourself a big favor, and go see this movie.

One great work of art, I want everyone to see.

Dr. Popp Guest Of Kiwanis Club

Dr. Carl Popp, guest speaker at the Tuesday night meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Ramada Inn, spoke on heart attacks.

Dr. Popp said that the intensive care unit at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital was opened with federal aid in 1970. Since the intensive care unit has been in operation the mortality rate caused by heart attack has been reduced ten to fifteen percent. Nurses are trained in coronary care at the expense of the federal government. Three nurses have been trained at the University of Missouri-Columbia. One of the nurses is still at the hospital and she trains nurses for the Missouri Delta Community Hospital and other hospitals as well. Thirty-three nurses have been trained in coronary care at the hospital since the program started.

In a report made to the Federal government in January 1971 the mortality rate had dropped ten to 12 percent. Not one man below the age of 65 died as the result of a heart attack in the hospital.

Six hundred thousand die every year of heart attack and half of these do not reach a hospital. Many misinterpret the signs of heart trouble. Some of the causes of heart trouble are hardening of the arteries, smoking, diabetes, over work and strain.

"Some of the symptoms of heart attack are chest pains under the chest bone, it is a dull pain and feels as if some one is squeezing you," Popp said and continued, "the pain goes up to the jaw and down into the arm, you start perspiring and grow weak."

"Everyone should have regular check ups and a cardiogram every year," Popp said. "One thing to remember is that of the 600,000 deaths caused by heart attack, 165,000 die before the age of 65.

Claude Benney was the program chairman and introduced Dr. Popp. Oliver Poos of Edwardsville, Ill. was a guest. Tom Lambert, associated with Ferguson Clinic, was introduced as a new member.

Dave Bowman, president, announced that Pancake Day tickets would be distributed at the next meeting.

Ann Landers

Mother Better Check On Daughter And Her Steady

Dear Ann Landers: About a year ago my two teen-age daughters sent away for your booklet on Necking and Petting And Where To Draw The Limits. They said it was a good booklet and they learned a lot from it. But they disagreed with your advice that a couple should keep both feet on the floor at all times. They insist that a couple who sets their minds to it can get into plenty of trouble even when both feet are on the floor. We had quite a discussion on this subject and I had to admit they were right -- especially when it comes to standing close together and kissing good-night.

The older girl is 16 now and she has a steady boyfriend. I often find them lying on the couch -- side by side, watching TV. The door to the den is usually wide open and there's always a dim light in the room. When I see them like this I say, half joking, "Remember now -- Ann Landers says "both feet on the floor." They yell back, "Yeah -- Old Annie has a thing or two to learn. Somebody ought to tell HER the facts of life."

I have no answer to that line and I hope you can provide me with one. Will you try? They promised to listen.

P.S. What do you think of passion marks? The kids call them hickeys. Also, last week when we came home early from a movie our daughter and her steady were upstairs. We didn't realize he was in the house until they both came down ten minutes later. My daughter said he was in her bedroom looking at her bulletin board. What do you think? ---Old Fashioned Mother in Little Rock

Dear Old Mother: I think these kids can use all the information they can get, plus a little closer supervision. They sound healthy, normal, eager and ready to sample all of life's goodies. Continue to keep the lines of communication open between you and your daughters and write again if you feel the need.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is three years old. For the past six months he has been waking up between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning -- screaming. He says he is afraid of the dark. I try to comfort him and tell him there is nothing to be afraid of but it usually takes about 15 minutes to quite him down.

This past week my husband has been very short-tempered about these nightly outburst. He works hard and needs his sleep. He says it's my fault because I have been catering the boy -- that from now on the child will get a hard spanking when he screams at night and then he'll learn not to bother us. The last three nights it has been worse than ever. After the spankings the child cried for at least a half an hour.

I have pleaded with my husband to leave a small light on but he says the boy will be a sissy, that he has to learn there is nothing to be afraid of. This problem is creating trouble between my husband and me. I wish you would tell me who is right and what should be done about the child's fear of the dark and the nightly screaming spells. -- Michigan Mother.

Dear Mother: The child's fear of the dark and the nightly screaming spells are symptoms of other problems. I hope you can persuade your husband to go with you to a counselor to discuss it. If he won't go -- go without him. I suggest a dim light in the boy's room until he settles down. The spankings should be terminated immediately. They will only add to the child's anxieties and he has enough already.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, with 16 cents worth of stamps to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Inside Religion

By Lester Kinsolving

"Two or three of our member denominations are pro-Arab, and we have many retired missionaries who are pro- Arab," explained Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, President of the National Council of Churches (NCC), last January in Berkeley, Calif.

"So a couple of times we have passed resolutions on the Middle East which I have been most unhappy about," added the brilliant and charming leader of the nation's largest Protestant organization (33 denominations, 42.5 million members).

One month later, at its quarterly meeting in Charlotte, N.C., the General Board of the NCC began what may be a significant turnabout - which should provide a badly needed contribution to the cause of bettering Judeo- Christian relations. For the 200-member General Board finally buried a resolution introduced last June by Dr. Frank Maria, of Warner, New Hampshire.

Maria is one of three NCC delegates from the Antiochian Orthodox Christian Archdioceseof New York and All North America (which until recently was known as the Syrian Orthodox Church).

He has used his credentials and prestige as a member of the NCC General Board to secure media time and space throughout the U.S. - in order to deliver such preposterous pronouncements as: "Egypt was no threat to Israel in 1967" and "Israelis treat Christians and Moslems like Hitler treated the Jews.'.

MARIA's resolution proposed to the NCC was so strident as to be described by The Christian Century magazine (certainly no friend of Israel's) as: "one- sided and implicitly pro- Arab."

Neither Maria (who was ill) nor any of his fellow Antiochians was present in Charlotte for the debate; which absence seemed appropriate. For, as this column previously reported (evoking Maria's written outrage), in 1969 the Antiochians contributed no financial support at all to the NCC's $20 million budget - despite the denomination's (claimed) membership of 100,000.

Maria has a Canadian counterpart who has also been using his church post as a conduit for Arab propaganda. The Rev. A. C. Forrest of Toronto is editor of the United Church of Canada's newspaper, The Observer (circulation: 350,000) which is widely regarded as the Maple Leaf edition of The Arabian Nights.

The Rev. Mr. Forrest has therefore been publicly saluted in Cairo by Secretary General Abdel Hassouna of the Arab League, who hailed him as the outstanding advocate of the Arab cause in North America. And Forrest has been able to sell his writings in the U.S. -- to what he calls "my editors": Karl Karsch of Presbyterian Life, Martin Bailey of the United Church Herald and Henry McCorkle of The Episcopalian.

These denominational house-organ editors have apparently and excitedly assumed that Forrest, in his frequent travels to Arab countries, is offering them valuable and accurate exclusives -- despite the Toronto Telegram's report of his "pro-Arab, anti- Semitic and dishonest journalism."

But in addition to his eloquent cries of alleged "Zionist persecution," Forrest regularly unearths that hoary ploy of alleging Zionist domination of the secular press -- in such writing as:

"There are a lot of gutless editors, publishers and public officials about."

This calibre of response has apparently awed his denomination's leaders -- even when the Rev. Donald Keating became so appalled at Forrest's editing that he quit the United Church's ministry in disgust.

Yet the Rev. Mr. Forrest apparently feels so invincible and established in his postiion that last January he rashly consented to a TV debate with the Rev. Dr. Franklin Littell, Professor of Religion at Philadelphia's Temple University and President of Christians Concerned for Israel. Sample exchange:

LITTELL; "You put out a special issue on Arab refugees in October of 1967?"

FORREST: "Our compassion arises becaue the Christian Churches, for whose publications I was writing, asked me to make that survey -- they are concerned with humanity generally."

LITTELL: "What was the date of the special issue you did on Jewish refugees?"

FORREST: "I have never done a number on the Jewish refugees."

LITTELL: "Really?"

NEW MADRID BAPTIST CHURCH has designated a former parsonage at 1230 Scott Street a foreign missionary family residence.

Former Parsonage To House Missionaries

NEW MADRID — New Madrid Baptist Church has designated a former parsonage at 1230 Scott Street as a foreign missionary family residence.

The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe, pastor, said the church is making the home available rent-free to a missionary family who will be on a year's furlough from foreign duty.

Many churches are providing this missionary outreach program, the Rev. Wolfe said, because it is difficult for missionary families to make living arrangements, either renting or buying, when they are home for just a year.

The modern three-bedroom brick dwelling will be redecorated, furnished and utilities will be paid for the missionary family during their occupancy.

Christ Gospel Church In Fifth Revival Week

Christ Gospel Church, 717 Kendall St., is now going into its fifth week of revival with the Rev. Wendell Neigh of Jeffersonville, Ind., as evangelist.

The revival was originally to last only three days but approximately 120 people have been coming each night, so the revival goes on. Thirty-eight have been converted to Christ and about 30 have received the Holy Ghost.

This has been the biggest revival since the church was started in 1961 by the Rev. Leonard Connor, who will be at the Friday night services to deliver the sermon.

Rev. Neigh was a former rock and roll star and became a Christian under the leadership of Rev. Connor. The Rev. Jerry Bachelder is the present pastor of the church.

Revival Services Set For Lilbourn Church

LILBOURN -- The Rev. Bill Pentecost of Dexter is evangelistic speaker for revival services at the First Church of God Wednesday through Saturday at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Special music, announced for the revival by the Rev. Billy Ray Owens, pastor, is to be provided Wednesday night by a trio of Norma Morrison, Estelle Steward and Geraldine Owens, accompanied by Eddie Morrison, organist.

Featured soloist Thursday is Pete Chartrau. Friday Norma Morrison and Glenda Barnes will sing duet and Doug Johnson is soloist. Soloist Saturday is Geraldine Owens and Eddie and Norma Morrison will sing duet.

Florida Trips To Be Campaign Prize

All systems are go for a Sunday School attendance campaign scheduled to begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 306 South Kingshighway.

Sunday at 9:30 a.m. attenders will watch the Space Men enter the capsule on the church lawn, and the countdown will continue toward blast-off. At blast-off those who are watching will participate in the launching of helium filled balloons bearing their name, as well as the name and address of the church. More than 350 people are expected to participate in this event.

The following goals have been set for the five-Sunday campaign: March 5 -- 350; March 12 -- 360; March 19 -- 375; and April 2 (Easter) -- 500.

The following prizes are being offered:

GRAND PRIZE: Awarded to the one acquiring the most points above the 10,000 minimum will be free Florida vacation, free passes to tour Cape Kennedy, auto expenses both ways, and the space craft with blast-off sound track. (Any child winning the vacation must be accompanied by adults between ages 25 and 65, whose expenses will also be furnished. Should, for any unforseen reason, the vacations be canceled, other prizes will be substituted.)

SECOND PRIZE: Free Florida vacation with auto expenses paid both ways. (Same rules above apply.)

THIRD PRIZE: Free Florida Vacation. (Same rules stated above apply.)

SPECIAL PRIZES: The one sending the helium-filled balloon the fartherest distance and have it returned by a person to one of the church services by March 12 will receive an astronaut Bible. The one returning the balloon will also receive an Astronaut Bible.

The Contest will be concluded with the Spring Revival Crusade with Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Scott of Oklahoma City, Okla. The revival will begin March 19 and will be concluded with an Easter Pageant, produced and directed by Mrs. Scott, Easter Sunday.

NCC To Draft Policy Statement On Abortion

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches has decided to establish a task force to draft a policy statement on abortion.

The force, to be appointed by Dr. Cynthia Wedel, president of the NCC, will include representatives of the Roman Catholic Church, which has observers at the midwinter meeting of the board.

A committee of the NCC recommended in a preconvention report that Catholics be invited to join the council, whose membership consists of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Greek Orthodox religious bodies with about 42 million members. There are about 48 million Roman Catholics in the United States.

The statement on abortion is to come up for debate at the meeting of the full national council in June. If adopted, it would be the first official position by the NCC on abortion and family planning.

The board decided on the task force after receiving from a study committee Friday a report on abortion which made no recommendations but merely reviewed the subject. The 22member lay committee discussed the theological, social and ethical implications.

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON

By Dr. William H. Taft

For March 5, 1972

Scripture: Isaiah 28:16; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Mathew 16:13-20; Ephesians 2:19-22

FOUNDATION OF THE CHURCH

For more than a decade church going has been on the decline in the United States. In a report by the Gallop Poll recently it was revealed that only 40 per cent of the people attend church on a regular basis.

Usually when such a problem is placed before the persons involved the immediate question is "Why?"

During the next three months these lessons will evolve around the nature and mission of the Church. Some answers will be sought to find out why the church today is pressured by stress and strain.

Most of these lessons will come from the New Testament which is a logical source. Yet there are roots that must be reviewed from the Old Testament.

Today's mission is to discover what is the foundation of the Church. At the same time possibly some answers may be found as to why the Church is having problems.

Three approaches have been suggested for the start of this study.

First: If the Church is having such difficulties, why not just abolish it and create some other form of worship?

Second: A review of the functions of the Church might offer some clues to the problems. In this respect, one might seek to determine the role of the Church in the community.

Third: How useful is the Bible in aiding in this study? How much of the accounts prepared centuries ago can be useful today?

Today's message comes in part from Ephesians. Many Bible scholars feel this book was written by Paul while in prison.

Some researchers, however, feel it might have been written by one of Paul's friends who was well acquainted with his literary style. Conflicts exist too about the exact time, varying from thirty years after the crucifixion of Jesus to the year 95.

The Church was started around the teachings of Jesus. Yet in another sense it was built upon the teachings of the prophets in the Old Testament.

In Ephesians Jesus is the "cornerstone." Any builder realizes that a cornerstone gives strength and definition to a structure. And new buildings usually feature a ceremony to place the cornerstone! Too, it is not uncommon for a cornerstone to contain valuable documents that will be useful in later years.

A true Church is a reality that cannot be confined within the building of a special denomination. It need not be restricted by a specific creed, or doctrine, or even a Bible.

Ensworth Reisner once said in a sermon that "The true Church is founded by individuals who recognize what Peter and a myriad of saints through history have recognized: 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

People nineteen centuries ago were uncertain who Christ was. Four possibilities are presented: John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.

When Christ asked the disciples, Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." This was the answer He sought. Authorities again disagree on Peter's role. The first Church did not recognize Peter as its highest authority.

The new Interpreter's One-Volume Commentary says, "The designation of Peter as 'the rock' does not view him as the first bishop of Rome and the founder of the Roman hierarchy, but as the first witness of the Resurrection and therefore as the prime apostolic witness that God raised Jesus from the dead."

THE HARMONY ECHOES of Granite City, Ill., have two singing engagements in area churches Sunday. Their first appearance will be at Second Street Church of God in Sikeston during the morning worship service. The second will be at 2 p.m. at First General Baptist Church in Bertrand for the montly Scott County Singing Convention, which also will feature the Tolbert Sisters of Sikeston and Gosepl Crusaders of Bloomfield.

The first meeting will be held Saturday night and the series will continue through March 25. Each program begins at 7:30 p.m. Special music, films and illustrated sermons will be presented. Speakers will be Pastor Scull, Robert Riggs and John Williams.

Laymen will be joined by every pastor, administrator and teacher in the Seventh-day Adventist Church in a simultaneous series of discussions designed to meet personal problems involving individuals and families in key cities and smaller towns and villages in the United States, Canada, Australia, the Far East and Inter- America.

Within the church, the project is known as Mission '72. Community discussions, however, have been labeled, "Reach Out for Life," and are designed to help people do just that, according to Adventist church officials.

In Sikeston church members are beginning a special project aimed at making the Bible a part of every home. They call it "Gift Bible Evangelism," Pastor Scull reports. For people who want to understand the Bible better, with the free Bibles is a series of study guides also available without charge. For your free Bible write to "Gift Bible," P.O. Charleston In 'L' Final

STANDARD SPORTSWRITER

POPLAR BLUFF — Except for that surprise upset of the Kennett Indians over the Dexter Bearcats, everything has gone pretty much as expected at Poplar Bluff this week in the Class L Regional. Last night there were two games in the semi final round of the regional, Cape Central beat the host Mules 72-61 and the Charleston Blue Jays emerged with a 68-57 win over the Kennett Indians. Thus, tomorrow night, the number one-seeded Central Tigers will meet the number two seeded Jays Friday night at 7:30 p.m. for the regional championship.

The opening game Thursday night had the Cape Central Tigers taking on a determined bunch from Poplar Bluff. Their determination may have hurt the boys from the Bluff City as mistakes cost them a 19-12 deficit after eight minutes of play. They played the highly rated Tigers fairly even the rest of the way. The teams were even in the second quarter with 20 points each. Cape led at half, 39-32.

Poplar Bluff played their best ball in the third period as they held a slim 17-15 advantage over the district's tallest quintest in that round. However, the Mules and their rookie coach suffered the frustration of not being able to chop anything off the Central lead in the final quarter. As a matter of fact the Mules again began to make mistakes and Central added to their lead by outscoring the Mules 18-12.

Scoring for the winners was led by 6-foot-3 guard Mike Uhls with 17. Dick Buxton was next with 16 as the 6-foot-4 forward was uncanny in his accuracy from the corner. Hunter Stiegemeyer was the other Tiger the score in twin figures for the victors who featured their usual balanced attack.

Even though Central was wearing their white home uniforms, it was the Mules court and it turned out to be their last game on it. Curtis Hinton closed out a sterling career by the top scorer with his 16 points for the Mules. As a matter of fact, the Mules top three scorers in the game and for the complete season were seniors. Closing out their careers as well for the purple-clad Mules were Kent Chronister, who scored 15, and John Griffin with 11.

In the second game, Charleston was installed as the heavy favorite. But, if it hadn't been for a torrid first half, the Indians might have pulled off something like the Woodland Cardinals did at Bloomfield last week. Charleston used the fast break and their ever-present rebound power to dominate the first half, 42-30. The Indians did not give up however, and came back to almost stop the fast break and held the Jays even in the second half, 27-26. The team from Charleston made several mistakes which undoubtably contributed to the closeness of the final 16 minutes.

Once again, the big man for Charleston was Albri Cassell. The 6-foot-4 cornerman pumped in 19 points and helped Dan Smith control the boards. Al Gordon also scored 19 for coach Lucian Black's Jays. The only other Blue Jay in twin figures was usually high scoring Alvin Pierce, whose cold hand kept the game close. The junior forward scored just 11 points, carrying a 22-ppg average.

Leading scorer for Kennett was Charles Johnson, the 6-foot-2 forward who has been playing inspired ball the entire second half on the season and particularly in the regionals. Thursday night Johnson scored 18 points for coach Terry Turlington. Also scoring in double-figures were 5-foot-9 playmaking guard Jewell McKinney with 15 and Tim Goodman, who scored 13.

BILL BRADLEY, erstwhile Rhodes scholar and now a New York Knick regular, says the outcome of the proposed merger between the American and National Basketball Associations will change the structure of professional sports.

Where Is Richie?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Richie Allen by any other name is just as tough to locate as the original was.

Allen, who has expressed a desire to be called Dick this season, either is or is not a holdout for the Chicago White Sox. General Manager Stu Holcomb isn't exactly sure.

This much Holcomb and the White Sox know. They did not have a contract with Allen's signature on it as they prepared for today's baseball exhibition opener against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Sarasota, Fla., and, as a matter of fact, they did not have Allen either.

"I don't know where Allen is at the moment," said Holcomb Tuesday. "We're waiting until he comes to us. It's been the history of the man that he generally reports late for spring training."

And, Allen's ex-employers in Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles might add, he's occasionally late for other incidentals like regular season games.

The problem does not seem to be financial. Holcomb has a verbal commitment from Allen's Philadelphia agent for a 1972 contract. The numbers are reported to be $120,000.

But a commitment is not a contract and a contract Holcomb does not have. "I imagine," said the Sox general manager, "he'll come to us when he gets ready."

He was not ready for today's opener, one of three exhibitions scheduled. The others had the New York Yankees playing the Texas Rangers at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the San Diego Padres playing the Mexico City Reds at Mexico City.

The absent Allen had some star company missing from other spring training camps. Joe Torre, who had been in St. Petersburg, negotiating with St. Louis, left town to fly to New Hampshire for some campaigning in the presidential primary there. And Vida Blue's attorney, Robert J. Gerst of Los Angeles, was keeping the pitching prodidgy out of Oakland owner Charles O. Finley's reach.

Torre, who made about $100,000 last year, is said to be shooting for $150,000—something over the 5.5 wage increase ceiling approved by President Nixon. Nevertheless, Torre is campaigning for the president while the Cards campaign for economic reason on the part of the National League's Most Valuable Player.

Blue, who made $14,750 toiling for the A's last year and was shooting for $92,000 this time around, is still at home in Mansfield, La., waiting for Finley to up his $50,000 offer. Finley said that Vida's attorney, Gerst, had turned down a proposal that the three talk contract at the A's Mesa, Ariz., training base.

Big Red Hire Black Assistant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have hired Bill "Thunder" Thornton, a former Nebraska and Big Red running back, as their first black assistant.

"I was looking first of all for a good coach," head coach Bob Hollway said Thursday following the appointment. "If he happened to be black, that was a plus."

Thornton, plagued through a five-season National Football League career by knee trouble, has been an assistant to Nebraska's Bob Devaney the past three seasons, coaching the backfield and defensive ends.

"I feel that Bill will be an asset to our staff," Hollway said. "He has had training with an excellent head coach and staff and has done a fine job."

Thornton, 31, was a two-time all-Big Eight Conference selection as a Nebraska fullback- linebacker and was chosen in the fifth round of the 1963 NFL draft by the Cardinals.

"It's a great opportunity with a good football team, and I'm looking forward to it," Thornton said in Lincoln, Neb. Referring to the job as "the chance of a lifetime," he added, "it's great to be back in the NFL."

Missouri Signs Ill. Grid Stars

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Linebacker Mark Kirkpatrick and quarterback and linebacker William Culp of Wood River, Ill., have signed football letters of intent at the University of Missouri, Coach Al ONofrio announced today.

Lincoln Declared Champion

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association Wednesday declared Lincoln University conference basketball champion.

The MIAA conference committee ruled, however, that Lincoln, of Jefferson City, must forfeit a Jan. 8 game played against Southeast Missouri State.

Lincoln finished with a 12-0 record in conference play but its standing was called into question because of the ineligibility of one player.

Lincoln will represent the MIAA in the NCAA regional playoffs.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Three members from South Carolina's senior defensive secondary have been drafted by National Football League teams.

Kick return specialist Dick Harris of Point Pleasant Beach, N.J., was drafted by the New York Jets in the fifth round. Safety Bo Davies of Gettysburg, Pa., was picked by the New Orleans Saints in the fifth round.

NCAA Bids Accepted

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- South Carolina, Florida State, Villanova, Providence and Marshall accepted invitations to fill at- large berths today in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's University Division basketball tournament, an NCAA spokesman siad.

Nine of the 25 starting spots in the tournament go to at- large schools. Other schools were to be contacted by NCAA headquarters at 9:30 a.m., by the school's local time.

Three of the five teams from the Eastern time zone invited to the tournament - South Carolina 23-1, Florida State 23-4, Marshall 17-2 — are ranked in the nation's Top Ten.

Mizzou In Key Saturday Battle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference basketball race dives headlong into the showdown stage Saturday.

League-leading Kansas State, with its 9-2 record, is at home against Colorado, 3-8, in a regionally televised afternoon game. Missouri, 8-3, dropped to second last week by a loss to Kansas, goes on the road for a night scrap at Nebraska, 7-4.

Only Kansas State and Missouri, ranked 19th nationally, figure to have much chance at the title but defending champion Kansas, 7-5, hopes to remain in the running for second in a game Saturday night at Oklahoma State, 1-11.

Oklahoma, 7-4, plays Iowa State, 4-8, at Norman, Okla., in tonight's only action and, like Nebraska, still has a mathematical chance of taking the crown. Both the Sooners and the Cyclones are idle Saturday.

Saturday's big game, of course, is the Missouri-Nebraska clash. If the second place Tigers beat the Cornhuskers, Missouri, assuming Kansas State will conquer Colorado, will have an opportunity to tie to tie the Wildcats for the lead Tuesday night when the two teams collide at Columbia, Mo.

Missouri has beaten Nebraska twice this season, 76-64 in the Big Eight preseason tournament and 80-65 at Columbia in their first league meeting.

Still, a Missouri club hasn't been able to beat the Cornhuskers at Lincoln, Neb., since Norm Stewart became coach of the Tigers. Stewart is in his fifth season.

Both the Tigers and Cornhuskers are smarting from defeats. Missouri was chilled by the Jayhawks when Bud Stallworth poked in his recordmaking 50 points, and Nebraska bowed last Saturday night to Colorado.

During the week, Stewart has concentrated on defense, a factor he says was responsible for the Tigers' defeat by Kansas.

"We scored 80 points and still lost control of the game's tempo," explains Stewart. "We did a very poor job defensively."

Bradley Looks Into Politics

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Bradley of the New York Knickerbockers is still "investigating" the possibility of running for Missouri state treasurer.

The Crystal City, Mo., Rhodes scholar was in St. Louis Wednesday chatting with political leaders.

He talked with city Democratic Chairman Paul M. Berra, Revenue Collector John K. Travers and others.

Bradley, 28, said there was nothing to reports that he might be thinking of running for Congress in the state's new 10th District.

"My interest has been, and continues to be, in the treasurer's race," he said.

Bradley has until April 25, the filing deadline for the August primary, to make up his mind.

Bradley, now in his fifth year with the Knicks, was given a $60,000 bonus to sign. If he runs and wins the $20,000- a- year treasurer's post, he said, it will be "impossible" for him to continue playing basketball.

By Ron Jaynes

Ron Jaynes

By the time you open to this page and begin reading I hope to have arrived in the town of the Tigers, where Class M state Tournament basketball action begins at 7 p.m. and the Richland Rebels seek their schools first state title.

I left early this morning and will return a story for Saturday's paper as well as make quarter by quarter reports back for telenews tonight and Saturday.

My able bodied assistant, Bill Harrison, has joined the Advance Hornets in their state tournament playoffs at Rolla and will make the same reports as I for the paper and telenews.

For you fans who do not get a chance to go ....you can read about all the happenings at both sites in Saturday's and Monday's issues of the paper with full picture coverage of the celebrated events.

Southeast Missouri has its best chance to claiming both titles for the first time in the history of the 45 year old tournament....So include the Rebs and Hornets in your prayers and back them all the way...we will.

Basketball fans from the district have their choice of tournaments to attend so get on the road and make one of the games....The players will appreciate your backing.

Things are looking good for the SEMO entires in the state tournament...In fact so good that I'll stick my neck out and claim both Advance and Richland as state champs....

Matthews was the last SEMO team to win a state title....that coming in 1968....It about time for another championship...or better yet a pair of championships....

Advance and Richland go into today's semifinals of the Missouri State high school activities association basketball tournament favored to capture their respective class crowns.

Carroll Cookson's Advance Hornets took the tag as the team to beat for the convet class S crown when they knocked off the state's top rated Wright City Wildcats in Wednesday's quarterfinals.

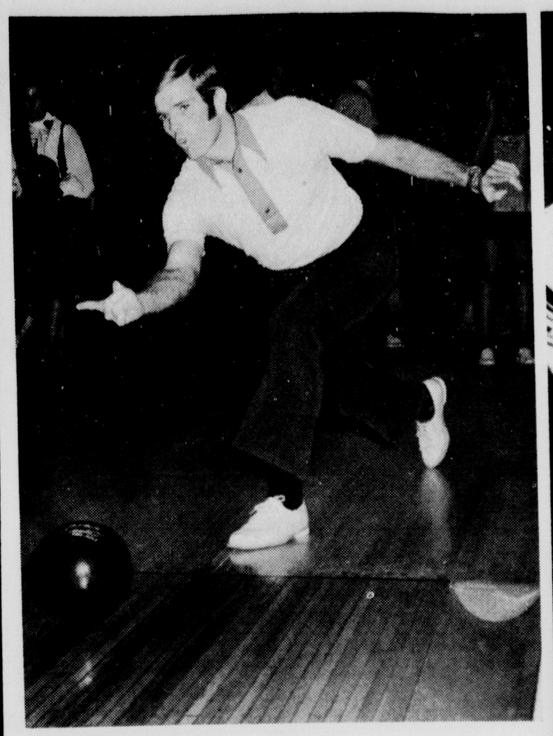
Richland's talented Rebels was taged as the Class M unit to beat for the crown when it made rather easy work of St. Louis Prep South in a Wednesday quarterfinal.

Both Southeast Missouri teams hail from Stoddard county and battled neck and neck all season for the league crown with the Rebs posting a narrow one point verdict for the title.

The traditional fast break, overpowering offense and rebounding talent that recent SEMO state tournament teams, have been noted for are big pluses for both units.

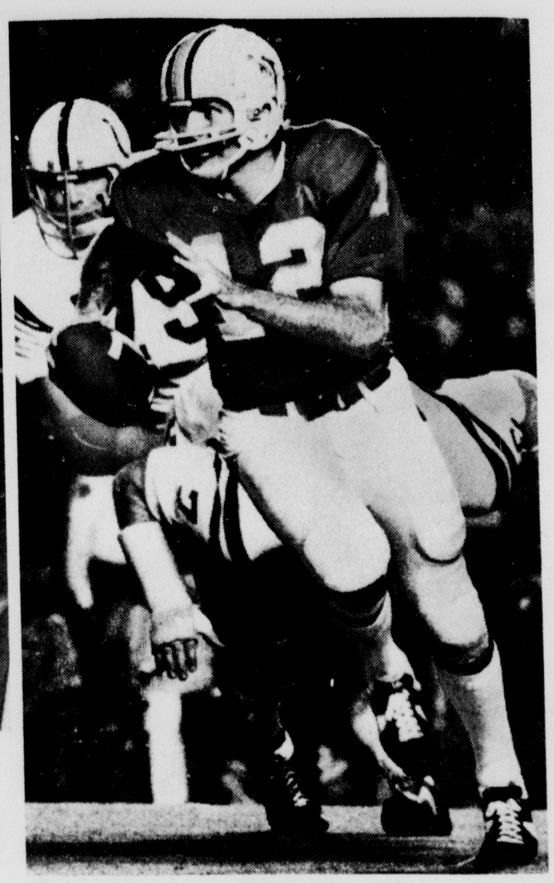
Richland, which owns the best record of the four class M state tournament finalest, will be shooting for its 31st victory of the season when they tangle with Kansas City St. Pius at 8:30 tonight.

Coach Larry Joplin's Rebels only loss came to Stoddard county neighboring rival Dexter Bearcats late in the season.



Roll-out

BOB GRIESE, the Miami Dolphins' quarterback and the man voted the National Football League's Most Valuable Player last season, displays the same smooth form in bowling that he does on the football field.



Morrisville Leads Class 'S' Field

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Morrisvilleville, No. 4 in its division in the state last year, leads the way into the Missouri Class S High School Basketball Tournament at the University of Missouri-Rolla tonight.

Morrisville, with 28 wins and 3 losses, takes on Northeast Nodaway, with a 28-1 record, at 8:30 p.m. North Harrison and Advance will meet in a preliminary game at 7 p.m.

Morrisville, which lost 71-63 to Cairo in the third-place tournament game last season, moved up this year through the Greenfield regional tournament.

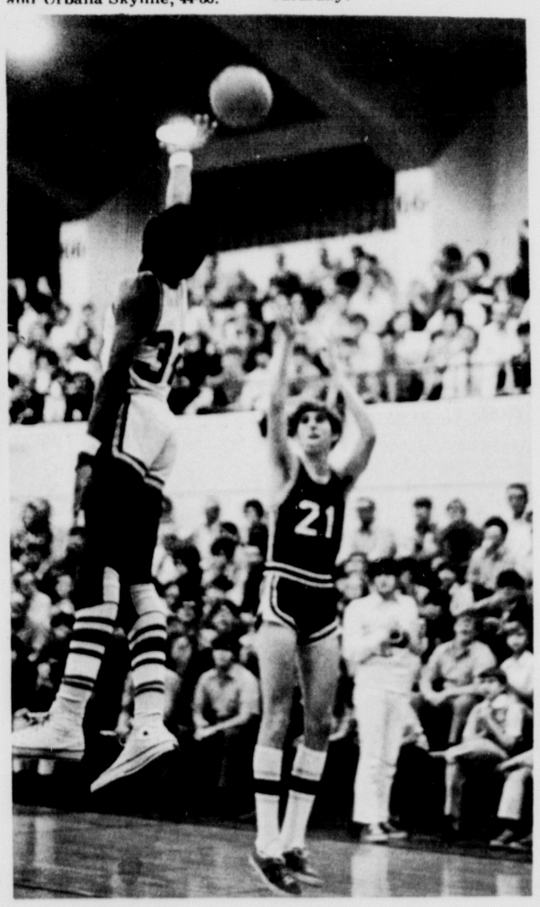
In state playoff action, Morrisville defeated SpringfieldGreenwood, 61-51, and Urbana Skyline, 44-38.

Northeast Nodaway of Ravenwood moved up in the Maryville regional and downed Stewartsville, 49-46, and Miami, 5045 in state action.

North Harrison of Eagleville has a 30-1 record and was winner of the Eagleville regional. It scored playoff victories of 6260 over Cairo and 86-73 over New Franklin.

Advance won the Matthews regional and defeated Myrtle Couch, 94-66, and Wright City, 84-78 in playoffs.

Loser's of tonight's games will meet at 7 p.m. Saturday to decide third place in Class S. The winner of tonight's games will meet for the championship at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.



DENNIS SIMS (32) gets high off the floor to deflect the shot of St. Louis Prep South's Kevin Bardot during quarterfinal round action of the Class M state tournament at Cape Girardeau Wednesday night. The Rebels move to Columbia for a semifinal match against Kansas City St. Pius tonight at 8:30.

Cards Make Last Offer

ST. Petersburg, Fla. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals General Manager Bing Devine says six salary holdouts have, in effect, received their last offer.

Devine, who arrived in the training camp Thursday, said the club may order the holdouts to camp under baseball's renewal clause. This was done two years ago when Richie Allen and Steve Carlton were holdouts.

Among the six Cards not yet signed is Joe Torre, third baseman who was voted the National League's most valuable player last year.

Torre said he was "sorry that that's the limit of the pay raise." He said he and the management were "a long way apart," Torre is believed to be asking for $150,000 a year.

Buck Worth Bucks

Salisbury — It may have looked like a small white-tailed buck deer to Max Mull of here, but it turned out to be a blind bogey worth a $500 hunting trip to Colorado.

Mull, who works for the Soil Conservation service, and hunting buddy Paul Jeffries, field service agent for the Department of Conservation, were bowhunting together in the 1971 season near Swan Lake Federal Refuge.

Mull, a member of the National Field Archery Assn., downed a 116-pound buck. He recalled that Roy Hoff, editor of the NFAA magazine "Archery", annually offers a "blind bogey" contest -- the first archer who submits a deer closest to the weight of the deer Hoff himself gets will win a hunting trip with Hoff worth $500.

It turned out that Mull's deer was identically the same weight as Hoff's and the two will open the season next autumn near Grand Junction, Colo., with Hoff picking up the tab.

There were a couple of oddities about Mull's hunt -- one was that this was the second straight year a Missouri deer had won the nationally - conducted blind bogey contest (a deer taken in the annual Knob Noster State Park bohunt by a Kansas City, Kansas, archer was the 1970 winner) and the second was that Mull's deer had a collar.

Danforth Follows Remap Idea

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth is going to go along with a federal three-judge panel's congressional redistricting plan for this year's elections, but will challenge the plan for the remainder of the decade.

Danforth contends in his appeal before the U.S. Supreme Court that the panel overstepped its powers when it took into account factors other than population in carving out 10 new districts.

It would serve no good purpose to press the appeal and further confuse the mixed up political situation this late in the election year, he said.

But he pledged to challenge the court's plan for future elections on the grounds that redistricting is primarily a legislative function.

The special panel acted when the legislature failed to come up with a plan of its own that would meet the U.S. Supreme Court's demand for districts nearly equal in population to satisfy the one man-one vote principle.

It is a problem which has been nagging almost every session of the General Assembly since 1961.

The two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Shain, fell into the fish pond at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.C. White, a few days ago and if it had not been for the timely arrival of Rose Marie Schorle and Mary Layton, the little fellow would have drowned. He is none the worse for his surprised bath.

What's The Law

Heavy Gal Loses Case

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

A railroad company spruced up one of its station platforms with a fresh coat of paint and a fresh layer of asphalt. But it was the appearance of statuesque Stella, however, several days later, that really gave the railroad station class. Standing six feet tall and weighing over 200 pounds, with each ounce of her being sexily placed, she produced more whistles than the oncoming train. Unfortunately, the train came and went without her. While she had been waiting patiently on the platform, one of her high, spiked heels slowly sank into the asphalt causing her to lose her footing and topple over.

Crashing to the station platform, statuesque Stella sued the railroad company for her downfall.

"Railroad platforms must be maintained in a safe condition for passengers," complained the high altitude beauty in court. "And, obviously, if my heel could sink into asphalt, it wasn't safe."

"There was nothing wrong with the platform," responded the attorney for the railroad company. "The problem was with Stella. She was too much of a good thing. Not even the platform could resist her, but that doesn't mean that it wasn't safe for the ordinary person."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the high-altitude beauty to collect from the railroad company for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that considering Stella's weight and the size of her heel, she would have exerted a downward pressure equal to 1,400 pounds per square inch. Under the circumstances, he therefore concluded, Stella was not aproper measure to determine whether or not the material used to mend the platform was adequate to make it safe of unsafe for passengers. (Based upon a 1966 St. Louis Missouri, Court of Appeals Decision.)

Mr. Charlie Blanton

Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Charlie:

I read with great interest your comments concerning Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company and free enterprise in this country. I wholeheartedly agree with you on the importance of keeping this freedom intact.

I would like, also, to comment on another one of our freedoms, the freedom of speech and opinion, which Jeanne Burke Logan of Charleston, Missouri, exercised in her letter to your paper printed in the February 24 issue. She commented that a source of finding out the caliber of an insurance company is by contacting the Missouri Division of Insurance. This is very true, and it is also true that it would be a good place to take her claim gripe, for if it is a legitimate gripe, certainly the Division of Insurance will see that fair action be taken. If it is a legitimate gripe, we want to be sure that it is treated fairly, also.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank both you, Charlie, for your article in the February 15 issue and Anne Wright of Bertrand, Missouri, for her very nice letter in defense of our Company.

Sincerely,
Jack B. Williams

The frequency of sound is determined by the number of times the vibrating waves undulate per second and is measured in cycles per second. The human ear is usually not sensitive to frequencies of less than 20 cycles per second, or more than 20,000 cycles per second, although this range varies among individuals, The World Almanac notes.

they walked with christ

By David Poling

A BLIND MAN FROM BIRTH

It was believed that sickness was a result of sin, a sign of God's displeasure. Quite naturally the disciples asked Jesus, "Who sinned, this man or his parents?" when they came upon an adult who had been blind since birth. Christ did not accept the sickness-sin doctrine. When God is present, sickness and infirmity are removed. Holiness is health. So Jesus said, neither parties sinned. This is an opportunity to reveal God's power in the cure. And so he did.

The reaction to the healing of this blind man occupies a long and heated argument in the Gospel of John. The religious authorities could not accept the power of Christ or believe His miracles. They challenged the man's cure. The prophet Isaiah had said that the Messiah would bring good news to the poor, proclaim release for prisoners and "recovery of sight for the blind." This healing miracle was a medical educational event of this truth—yet many could not believe it. Such is the nature of man's freedom.
